Bahrain saboteurs brought to court

By Adnan Sadiq
Gulf Bureau

BAHRAIN, Jan. 4 (AP) — The first batch of a group of 60 accused saboteurs of different Gulf nationalities appeared before a magistrate's court here Monday to hear charges of conspiracy and subversion. The trial is expected to begin next week. The group included 45 Bahrainis, 13 Saudi Arabians, a Kuwaiti and one Omani.

Prince Fahd postpones Japan visit

TOKYO Jan. 4 (AP) — Visiting Saudi Arabian Minister of Petroleum and Mineral Resources Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani told Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakuruchi Monday that the situation in the Middle East made the postponement of Crown Prince Fahd's scheduled visit to Japan "inevitable," a spokesman for the foreign ministry said.

According to the spokesman, Yamani told Sakuruchi that Prince Fahd, is "extremely busy."

Suitable dates for a possible visit by the prince, who also postponed a visit to Washington scheduled for this month, will be negotiated through diplomatic channels, the spokesman said. The prince had planned to visit here for four days starting Jan. 11.

Sheikh Yamani arrived here from Pakistan Sunday, and is expected to meet Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Tuesday.

Iranian faces fraud charge

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Iranian businessman Benhan Nodjourni, already accused of kidnapping three of his country's diplomats, faced an additional charge Monday of conspiring to defraud the Tehran government of 26 million pounds ($49 million) with a bogus arms deal.

Magistrate Peter Fanner at London's Marylebone Magistrates' Court ordered the Iranian held in police custody without bail for one week when the new charge was presented. Nodjourni had been allowed bail at an earlier hearing.

Four Britons also charged in connection with the kidnapping were allowed bail.

All five defendants are charged with assaulting Iranian diplomats Abolghassen

Behzadi, Mahmoud Sabahat and Hassan Moghadam and unlawfully imprisoning them in two London apartments for six days last October.

The abduction was part of a plot in which the diplomats were forced to negotiate with their government on the arms deal, the prosecution said.

Prosecutor Barry McGill told the court that if the "gigantic fraud" allegedly masterminded by Nodjourni had succeeded, the Iranian government would have collected 32 crates of tin instead of 8,000 anti-tank missiles ordered for the war against Iraq.

McGill claimed the plot was foiled after the kidnapped diplomats managed to tip off London police.

Following EEC meeting

NATO ministers to assess Polish situation

BRUSSELS, Jan. 4 (Agencies) — The foreign ministers of the NATO alliance will meet here next Monday to assess the martial law situation in Poland and coordinate the Western response to it, a NATO spokesman has announced.

The spokesman said Monday the "special meeting of the North Atlantic Council at ministerial level has been called to consider the situation in Poland." One diplomatic source added that 15 ministers "will also discuss imposing economic sanctions against the Soviet Union."

The United States has imposed such sanctions against the Soviet Union of complicity in the declaration of martial law in Poland Dec. 13. To date, Western Europe has been hesitant to follow suit.

Since the declaration of martial law, the national representatives to NATO have met regularly to discuss the Polish events. They have expressed their concern of the effect these events are having on East-West relations. And in a private statement last week, NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns accused the Soviet Union of having had a hand in the developments in Poland — a charge the alliance as a whole has to date not made.

In a related development, foreign ministers of the 10-nation European Economic Community (EEC) Monday sought to reach a consensus assessment of the Soviet Union's role in the Polish military clampdown.

Italian Foreign Minister Emilio Colombo had earlier noted that "moral and political pressures by the Soviet Union and other Eastern countries, along with their approval and moral support of repression in Poland, should not be neglected by European countries which must make a political appraisal of it." The EEC's study of the situation must "spell out the responsibility of the Soviet Union and other Eastern countries in the evolution of overall East-West relations," he added.

Colombo also underscored the need for solidarity between EEC members and other Western countries, including the United States. "Otherwise, we would compound two serious mistakes: indirect approval of repression in Poland and division of the West," President Reagan decided last week to the Soviet restrict exports of technology to the Soviet Union in response to what he charged was Moscow's role in the Polish crackdown. Earlier, the United States had curtailed food exports and taken other actions against Poland itself.

Meanwhile, the official Polish news agency up last month when the Bahraini authorities received information that the group, instigated by Iran, was planning large-scale terrorist acts in Bahrain which they hoped would culminate in a revolution along the lines of the Iranian one.

Bahrain accused the Iranian government of training and arming and abetting the saboteurs in Tehran and instructing them to infiltrate the island and other areas in the Gulf.

Commenting on the conspiracy Saudi Arabian's Interior Minister Prince Naif said there was evidence that other countries in the region were targeted for subversion, including the Kingdom.

A few days later he flew out to Bahrain where he signed a joint security agreement with the government for the extradition of criminals and coordinated measures in combat crime and subversion. He called on their Gulf countries to enter into similar agreements.

Twelve other Bahraini saboteurs still in Iran were given three months to return home and face charges that they had taken part in an abortive coup attempt here last month, a government spokesman said Monday.

The spokesman said the 12, whose photographs were printed in Akhbar Al Khadij newspaper, would have their citizenship revoked and passports withdrawn if they did not meet the deadline. He also said they would be tried in absentia.

Kuwait calls on Iraq, Iran to end fight

KUWAIT, Jan. 4 (AP) — Kuwait called on Iran and Iraq Monday to respond to mediation efforts to end their 14-month-old war "in order to deprive the superpowers of any pretext to interfere in the Gulf area."

The appeal was made by Health Minister Abdul Rahman Al-Awadi, who is acting as Minister of State for Cabinet Affairs, after a cabinet meeting.

Awadi also revealed that Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah Al-Ahmed Al-Sabah has replied to a message from Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati expressing his government's desire to improve relations with Kuwait.

Kuwait and Syria were reported last week to be planning a joint initiative to end the war on the northern flank of the Gulf. Velayati visited Syria last Thursday but Iranian announcements said the purpose of the visit was to express Iran's support to Syria in the wake of Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights and that mediation in the Iran-Iraq war was not discussed.

Asked about the responses to the mediation soundings, Awadi said: "The general trend of events indicate that the two parties are willing to end the war and that Syria is apparently moving in this direction." He did not elaborate.

Fahd lays foundation stone of Islamic U township

RIYADH, Jan. 4 (SPA) — Crown Prince Fahd laid the foundation stone of the university town for the Imam Muhammad ibn Saud Islamic University here Monday.

Unveiling the plaque, he said: "In the name of God and with divine blessing, today we dedicate the establishment of these buildings of the Imam Muhammad ibn Saud Islamic University, on behalf of the King Khaled. The university has undoubtedly carried out its stupendous obligation and, God willing, its performance will be still better. We thank Dr. Abdullah Al-Turki and all professors and wish them success."

The crown prince said, "I am greatly thankful to the Minister of Higher Education, the vice-chancellor and the senate for the honor done to me by conferring the honorary doctorate. I shall always be proud of it." He said that education is the basis of any nation wishing to reach the summit, and the basis of education is the correct religious upbringing. Ever since the time of Imam Muhammad ibn Saud and Imam Muhammad ibn Abdul Wahhab, this country based itself on religious education which continues on the same pattern until today, he added. Prince Fahd said the nations are not to be judged by their financial resources and other potentialities but by the preservation of their divine faiths. "There is nothing better than our sublime faith which has come to complete all other heavenly religions. All this development would not have been achieved without this nation's preservation of its Islamic faith."

Prince Abdullah says

University has message for all people

RIYADH, Jan. 4 (SPA) — Prince Abdullah, second deputy premier and commander of the National Guard, Sunday expressed his admiration for the Imam Muhammad ibn Saud Islamic University and said the universities are the fountainhead of intellectuals for the society.

In a message on the occasion of the foundation stone laying of the university town, Prince Abdullah said the university's message is not confined to imparting knowledge to students but it ought to contribute in the spread of knowledge throughout the society. "We believe that the IMISU, like all other universities of the Kingdom, is aware of this aim and strives for its realization," he added.

The prince reaffirmed that the state will not spare any effort in helping the universities to the maximum extent possible, "so that our nation regains its effective role in the building of world civilization."

The message was contained in the university's magazine Mir'at-ul-Jamia (University Mirror), whose first issue appeared Monday.

In the same magazine, Sheikh Abdul Aziz ibn Baz, general president of the department of scholarly research, religious ruling, call to Islam and guidance, said the IMISU is an organization that strives to spread the doctrine of the worthy ancestors and calls for the convening of meetings to explain the teachings of the followers of the Traditions of the Prophet Muhammad.

The magazine also contained a message from Sheikh Hassan Al-Sheikh, minister of higher education, who highlighted the university's achievements in different fields. He said that its achievements, which derived their inspiration from the Holy Quran and the Prophetic Traditions, had been accomplished in a record time.

Al-Sheikh said the Kingdom's seven universities have more than 670 holders of doctorates, besides a large number of other such scholars now working in the different departments of the states.

Education holds high priority

According to a Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency annual report, education commands high priority in government policies because of the great importance it carries in the Islamic value system and the vital role it can play in the country's social and economic development. Accordingly, SR122.5 billion has been allocated to education in the Third Five-Year Plan.

The Ministry of Education, the General Directorate of Girls Education and the Ministry of Higher Education are the major vehicles for the government's policies. These three agencies are together responsible for nearly 1.5 million students in 5,575 schools, six universities consisting of 54 colleges and higher institutes, the report added. It also said the government is concerned not only with achievement of enrollment targets, but also with improving the quality of education through sound planning of educational facilities, teaching curricula and educational methods.

According to SAMA, at the end of the academic year 1399/1400 (1979/80), 1,445,342 students were enrolled in primary, secondary and higher education institutions throughout the Kingdom — a nine percent increase over the preceding year. The number of teaching staff was 77,632 — an 11 percent increase. More than 600 new schools were opened during 1399/1400.

The Third Development Plan aims at achieving a further increase in the number of students and schools at all education levels. The Ministry of Education is to open 1,294 new schools and to increase enrollments by almost 339,000. The General Directorate for Girls' Education aims to enroll nearly 215,000 new students during the plan period.

Improving higher education

In higher education, the policy is to improve the accessibility of university-level studies to eligible students in accordance with the requirements of the Third Five-Year Plan. Allocations in the Third Plan include SR23 billion for new university cities, development of university sites, new colleges and university housing.

The universities are making significant progress with campus construction and the development of teaching facilities. Saudi Arabian students are also studying abroad for master's and doctorate degrees in preparation for careers in university teaching, civil service and other areas of national life.

A total of 47,900 male and female students were enrolled at universities during the academic year 1399/1400, an increase of 6 percent. The teaching staff totaled 4,806 and the average number of students per teacher improved to 10 from 11 in the previous year.

Talks planned with Prince Saud

Klibi renews drive to resume summit

RIYADH, Jan. 4 (SPA) — Arab League secretary general, Chedli Klibi, arrived here Monday for talks with Foreign Minister Prince Saud regarding the Arab situation. Klibi arrived in Jeddah on Sunday evening.

Klibi told newsmen that the visit is the start of a series of consultations he intended to hold with various Arab leaders to resume the Arab Summit Conference. The secretary general also said that Israel's virtual annexation of the Golan Heights triggered the alarm signal for the Arab world. Arab states have been reminded of the extent of danger Israel poses and of the necessity of halting their efforts, tactics and solidarity to face this danger, he added.

The official said he hoped that this conviction will help resume the Fez summit to rebuild Arab solidarity on solid foundations and map a reliable Arab strategy to face any outside threats. He also pointed out that Arab states are making great efforts toward the United States to persuade the country that it should strive for justice and put an end to the Israeli assaults for the sake of Arab-American friendship and peace.

Klibi also expressed his satisfaction over the re-establishment of diplomatic relations between Saudi Arabia and Libya, and said this will foster Arab solidarity.

He also expressed the hope that cordial relations will prevail among all Arab states. He said that the Arab countries have demonstrated their readiness to the higher interests of the Arab world and transcend their differences. "And this, no doubt, is a positive and encouraging development witnessed in recent weeks," he added. At the same time,

Agriculture licenses given for 3 projects

RIYADH, Jan. 4 (SPA) — Agriculture and Water Minister Dr. Abdul Rahman ibn Abdul Aziz Al-Sheikh Monday granted licenses for three agricultural and livestock breeding projects of a total value of SR52,933,494.

The first project in Qasim and over a 400 hectare area will produce 600 tons of wheat and 3,700 tons of green fodder. It will cost SR17,355,323. The second project, again in Qasim, will produce vegetables in green houses. Its estimated capacity is 150 tons of tomatoes and 120 tons of cucumbers at the overall cost of SR3,656,333.

The third project is in Al-Quway'ayyah and will produce 2.5 million chickens a year. It will cost SR31,921,838. The Agricultural Bank will extend the necessary loans to the private sector for the implementation of the three projects.

Klibi pointed to Arab efforts being undertaken to resolve the Iraqi-Iranian dispute, hoping that these efforts will be crowned with success in the near future.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman denied late Sunday night a Reuters newsagency report that Prince Saud Al-Faisal, the foreign minister, had told the New York Times that Saudi Arabia was ready to recognize Israel if the latter restored the occupied Arab territories and recognized Palestinian rights.

The spokesman said that what Prince Saud told the newspaper correspondent was that the important thing was Israel's recognition of the Palestinian people's rights and its withdrawal from the occupied Arab territories and that in case Israel responded favorably to these two lawful demands, peace could prevail in the area.

In other developments, North Yemeni Foreign Minister Ali Lutf Al-Thor arrived here and was met by Prince Saud and other Foreign Ministry officials.

Also, Khaled Al-Fahoum, the head of the Palestine National Council, Monday voiced the Palestinian people's appreciation of Saudi Arabia's continuous support to their cause since the time of King Abd 4 Aziz.

With 12 new faces

Mubarak swears in 34-member cabinet

CAIRO, Jan. 4 (Agencies) — President Hosni Mubarak Monday swore in his new 34-member cabinet, telling them to refrain from making rosy public promises and stick to telling the people facts.

Mubarak presided over the first meeting of his new cabinet immediately after individually swearing in Prime Minister Fuad Mohameddin, and the 32 men and one woman in the cabinet — the first picked by Mubarak since he succeeded the late President Anwar Sadat.

The new Information Minister Safwat al-Sharif told reporters after the meeting at the president's offices in Uruba Palace that Mubarak "told us the emphasis is on facts and achievements, not on promises."

There are 12 new faces in the cabinet, with the renovation mostly concentrated in the economic team. Muhammad Abdul-Fattah Ibrahim, formerly governor of Egypt's Central Bank, replaces Abdel-Razzak Abdul-Meguid as deputy prime minister for finance and economy. Also replaced in the economic field were the ministers of economy, finance, industry, planning, agriculture and tourism.

Al-Sharif said the president stressed "self-reliance and honesty" and said there would be "no privileges, no favoritism, no exceptions, people will be evaluated according to their performance and accomplishments."

Sadat's "open door" economic policies initiated in 1974 have also been criticized for having increased the gap between the rich and the poor, and encouraged a flood of luxury imports while ignoring productive industry.

Mohieddin told reporters the new cabinet would try to orient the open door toward production needs and away from luxury consumer goods.

In another major change Mohieddin

Mubarak, Percy discuss Mideast

CAIRO, Jan. 4 (Agencies) — Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak discussed the Middle East situation Monday with Charles Percy, chairman of the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Senator Percy declined to comment on the outcome of his 90-minute meeting with the Egyptian president.

Percy flew to Cairo from Amman on Saturday where he held similar talks with Middle East developments and bilateral relations. He said in Amman that the Palestinian problem must be resolved before peace and security came to the Middle East.

Percy arrived here for a four-day visit which included some sightseeing in the ancient southern city of Luxor as well as meetings with top Egyptian officials. The senator is expected to meet with Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali on Tuesday before going on to Sudan. American Embassy sources said.

U.S. may name special M.E. envoy

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig's aides say he spent the last five days seriously considering whether to name a special envoy to the drawn-out Egyptian-Israeli negotiations on Palestinian autonomy, the New York Times reported Monday.

While in California, aides said Haig studied the Middle East situation and the possibility of sending a high-level negotiator to demonstrate the Reagan administration's commitment to an agreement, the Times said. But the newspaper quoted one unidentified State Department official as saying that Haig is not convinced the time is right to take action.

KUWAIT, (R) — French External Relations Minister Claude Cheysson has postponed indefinitely a visit to Kuwait scheduled for next Saturday, a Kuwaiti government spokesman said Monday. He said another date for the visit, which would have been the first by Cheysson to this Gulf state, would be set later.

named Police General Hassan Abu Basha to replace Nahawi Ismail as minister of interior. Ismail is unpopular with many segments of the Egyptian public, and many privately accuse him of forming "a second army" in his internal security force.

Abu Basha, who is extremely popular in police ranks, was former head of the state security apparatus and a deputy interior minister, and is credited with having directed the arrests of hundreds of religious fundamentalists in the wake of Sadat's assassination.

After the swearing in ceremony Mubarak presented Ismail, who was given the post of deputy premier for services and local government, with a medal, "the order of the Nile," in appreciation of his work as interior minister.

There were no changes in the key areas of foreign affairs and defense, where Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali and Defense Minister Abdul-Halim Abu Ghazala retained their posts.

As the new cabinet grouped around Mubarak for the official photograph on the steps of Uruba Palace, the skies opened up with the first downpour to hit Cairo this year. Quipped one new minister about the rain which is considered a good omen here, "Maybe this means we'll do a good job."

No compromise on sovereignty, Zia stresses

ISLAMABAD, Jan. 4 (Agencies) — President Muhammad Zia ul-Haq, opening a five-day conference here Sunday of Pakistani ambassadors serving in 41 foreign capitals, said that Pakistan has withstood "external challenges" due to its "determination not to compromise" on sovereignty and independence.

"In our foreign policy, we have reflected our Islamic orientation and worked consistently to establish fraternal relations with the countries of the Muslim world," Gen. Zia told the envoys.

The conference, the broadest gathering of Pakistani diplomats ever held, has been convened to discuss a wide range of foreign policy issues including the situations in Afghanistan, the Middle East and Poland, officials said.

Conditions of Pakistanis working abroad, relevant domestic matters and the country's relations with its neighbors, particularly India, will also be discussed, the sources said.

In a separate development, K.G. Bhatia, president of Karachi Hindu Panchayat (association), said Monday that the Hindu minority should make up a larger representation of the four provincial councils and the nominated 350-member federal council.

In a press statement, Bhatia said there were one million Hindus living all over Pakistan, but out of 350 members, only two Hindus are members of the council.

Arab ministers to meet on Golan

TUNIS, Jan. 4 (AP) — Foreign ministers from the 21-state Arab League are expected to meet here during the weekend or early next week to discuss Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights. Arab League sources said Monday.

The extraordinary session of the foreign ministers has now been postponed twice. It originally was set for Dec. 27 and then rescheduled for Jan. 5 at the request of Syria, which issued the call for the meeting.

The latest postponement was arranged so that the meeting could be held after Monday's U.N. Security Council debate on Syria's proposal that the United Nations impose sanctions against Israel if it does not revoke its annexation.

Bomb blast kills three in Tehran

BEIRUT, Jan. 4 (AP) — A bomb explosion in a residential area of central Tehran killed three revolutionary guards and wounded a woman and child, Iran's official news agency reported Monday.

The Islamic Republic News Agency (IRNA) blamed the bomb blast in Karegar Avenue Sunday night on the underground Mujahedeen Khalq guerrilla organization. The Mujahedeen Khalq, the largest opposition group fighting the fundamentalist regime of Ayatollah Khomeini, has pledged to continue its attacks against Khomeini loyalists who the guerrillas blame for the execution and torture of their members.

More than 1,600 Mujahedeen and other government foes have been executed by the Khomeini regime on terrorist charges, such as explosions and assassination of leading figures in the past six months, according to the government. But the Mujahedeen say the total is more than 8,000.

The state-run Tehran radio said Monday two Mujahedeen Khalq members were killed last Friday in clashes with revolutionary guards in central Tehran. In the past two weeks a total of 94 Khomeini opponents have been arrested in Tehran and several other parts of the country, the broadcast said.

Iraq, S. Yemen to restore ties

PARIS, Jan. 4 (AFP) — Diplomatic relations between Iraq and South Yemen will shortly be re-established at full ambassador level, according to the Iraqi News Agency (INA) monitored here Monday.

Iraq recalled its ambassador in Aden on June 12, 1979 following the assassination there of an Iraqi Communist Party official. Several Iraqi diplomats in Aden were subsequently sent for trial in connection with the killing.

Quoting an Iraqi Foreign Ministry communique, the agency said the move "reflects the concern of the Iraqi and South Yemeni governments to improve relations between the peoples of the two countries."

BIR ZEIT UNIVERSITY: Picture shows the Bir Zeit University, the largest Arab college in the occupied West Bank, which was reopened Monday after being closed for two months by Israeli authorities. The university's closure Nov. 4 followed three days of violent student demonstrations against Israel's civilian administration in the West Bank.

Site of anti-Israeli demonstrations

Bir Zeit U reopens after two-month closure

TEL AVIV, Jan. 4 (AP) — Bir Zeit University, the largest college in the occupied West Bank, reopened Monday after being closed two months ago by Israeli authorities following student demonstrations.

The all-Arab college, north of Jerusalem, was ordered closed Nov. 4 following three days of violent demonstrations against Israel's civilian administration in the West Bank. The military originally ordered the school closed for an indefinite period, but the supreme court ordered authorities to set a specific and "reasonable" period for the closure.

West Bank Palestinians oppose the civil administration because they view it as an attempt by Israel to impose the limited self-rule envisioned in the Camp David peace accords, which they reject.

The closure sparked protests from Israeli liberals who called it a blow to academic freedom. Bir Zeit University officials held a brief assembly with students before classes resumed, but they said no limitations were placed on the institution, which has been the site of frequent anti-Israeli demonstrations.

Eight of the nine members of the school's student council have been confined to their home towns or villages for six months. Military authorities accuse the eight of inciting the school's 1,700 students to riot.

The university's acting president, Dr. Gabi Baramki, and other officials met last Friday with Professor Menahem Milson, the head of Israel's civilian administration in the West Bank to discuss the school's reopening. Milson told the officials that contacts with the university's president, Dr. Hanna Nasser, were illegal, the Jerusalem Post reported.

Nasser was expelled to Jordan in 1974 after Israel accused him of being a member of the Palestine Liberation Organization. He has been active in fund-raising for the university, the Post said.

"We hope this method of closure will cease," Albert Aghazarian, university vice president for public relations, told Israel radio. "If it is for preventive purposes, then you have much less drastic ways of coping with the situation, and if it's punitive, then it is definitely collective punishment."

Report from Kabul says

Soviet Union boosts troops in Afghanistan

NEW DELHI, Jan. 4 (AP) — The Soviet Union sent more than 20,000 additional troops into Afghanistan in recent weeks in a continuing buildup that is expected to increase the Soviet contingent there to 150,000 men by this spring, a report from Kabul said Monday.

The report, quoting an Afghan military source in Kabul, also said that MiG jet fighters and dreaded helicopter gunships have been launching cross-border raids on northern Afghan provinces from air bases inside the Soviet Union during the past month.

Likewise, Afghan freedom fighters have several times recently struck across the Oxus River that divides the two countries, raiding the Soviet town of Termez and torching several villages around it, said the report from a source who has been accurate in the past.

The Soviet military buildup began in mid-December after remaining at about the 89,000-man level since Moscow intervened in its neighbor to the south in December 1979. The report estimated there now are 110,000 to 120,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan, and quoted a military source in the capital as saying it would increase to 150,000 "within three or four months."

Fresh Soviet units have been spotted at the major logistics points of Shindand in the far west of Afghanistan near Herat, at Kailagat in the north near Pule-Chomri, and at the huge Soviet base at Bagram, about 30 kilometers outside Kabul, the report said. Additional planes and helicopters also have been sent to Afghanistan, the report said, but gave no estimate of the number.

The Kabul report squared generally with diplomatic and Western intelligence reports during December.

An assessment by the U.S. government released in Washington on Dec. 23, roughly a week after the Kabul report said the buildup began, said the Soviet Union radio increased its contingent in Afghanistan to 90,000 men.

That analysis also noted that the Soviet decision to beef up its force came after efforts failed to revitalize the defection and desertion-riddled Afghan army, which has dwindled to about 30,000 men, about one-third its normal strength.

In an apparently unrelated development, Afghan fighters from the Sherkan Bandar region have crossed the Oxus River several times in recent weeks to raid Termez, the strategic Soviet town where supplies are marshaled for transport into Afghanistan, it said. Several villages around the town also were attacked and burned.

The Mujahiddin, or "holy warriors" as the Muslim fighters call themselves, wanted to show that they are "not sitting idle and can fight" the continuing Soviet presence

Ken Anderson impresses

Bengals, 49ers move ahead

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals and San Francisco 49ers joined the San Diego Chargers and Dallas Cowboys as the survivors in the National Football League playoffs Sunday and advanced to the conference championship games — the last stop on the road to Super Bowl XVI Jan. 17 at the Pontiac, Michigan, Silverdome.

Cincinnati will host the Chargers for the American Conference crown next Sunday and Dallas will play the 49ers at San Francisco.

The Bengals advanced with a 28-21 victory over Buffalo fueled by the pinpoint passing of Ken Anderson, the league's top-rated quarterback during the regular season.

San Francisco eliminated the Giants 38-24 on the passing of Joe Montana who threw for two TDs and directed the 49ers to 17 second-quarter points and a big lead that New York simply couldn't overcome.

Undoubtedly, the most exciting game of the weekend was San Diego's pulsating 41-38 overtime decision Saturday against Miami, a see-saw contest finally decided on Rolf Benirschke's dramatic 29-yard field goal.

That contest was in sharp contrast to Dallas' 38-0 blowout of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Saturday. The Cowboy defense dominated the contest, intimidating Bucs quarterback Doug Williams into four interceptions, three of them leading to Dallas touchdowns.

The Bengals beat the Bills when Anderson, who passed for 169 yards in the game, threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to Cris Collinsworth early in the fourth quarter.

Cincinnati had jumped in front on a pair of short burst first-quarter touchdowns by Charles Alexander and Pete Johnson. The first one came after a 24-yard punt return by Mike Fuller gave the Bengals the ball on the Bills' 42-yard line. The second followed an interception by Ken Riley. Just when it looked like the Bengals were on route to a rout, the Bills came to life, scoring touchdowns on three straight possessions over 16 minutes.

Cincinnati had regained the lead on a 20-yard run by Alexander but Joe Ferguson still drove the Bills to the tying touchdown, hitting Jerry Butler for 21 yards on the first

Ken Anderson ... in top form play of the fourth quarter. Then, Anderson brought the Bengals back for one more score, finding the rookie Collinsworth for the deciding TD.

That sent the Bengals into the AFC title game for the first time in their history. Coach Forrest Gregg credited Anderson, an 11-year veteran, with that accomplishment. A 58-yard TD pass play from Montana to Freddie Solomon highlighted a 17-point spurt by the 49ers within 4½ minutes of the second quarter against the Giants, opening a 24-7 lead.

New York cut the San Francisco lead to 24-17 in the third quarter but a Giant drive was stalled on the 4-yard line and after Joe Danelo missed a short field goal try, the 49ers took control. TDs by Bill Ring on a 3-yard run and Ronnie Lott on a 20-yard intercept in return clinched the victory.

Scott Brunner threw three TDs passes for the Giants, two of them to Johnny Perkins. His first, a 72-yarder to Earnest Gray, tied the score at 7-7 in the first quarter.

Saturday, Benirschke's winning field goal was a second chance for the Charger place kicker, who had missed a chip-shot 27-yard try early in the overtime period against the Dolphins. "I just wanted to kick it so badly for the other players," he said. "Everybody misses some and I was just fortunate to get another chance."

Uwe Von Schamann, Miami's placement man, wasn't as lucky. Von Schamann had two potential game-winning kicks blocked, one from 43 yards with four seconds left in regulation time and the other a 34-yarder just before Benirschke's field goal.

The Charger-Dolphin game was a see-saw affair that set a playoff record for points scored. San Diego led 24-0 in the first quarter and saw Miami come roaring back to seize the lead at 38-31 in the fourth quarter behind reserve quarterback Don Strock, who threw for 397 yards.

San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts set playoff records with 53 passes and 33 completions, for 433 yards and forced the overtime by throwing his third TD pass of the game, this one to James Brooks in the final minute of regulation time.

The Cowboys started slowly against Tampa Bay, leading only by 10-0 at halftime. But Dallas hunched three TDs in the third quarter to break the game wide open. Dennis Thurman had two of the four Cowboy interceptions against Tampa's Ailliams.

Hamburg proves too good for Nice

CANNES, Jan. 4 (AFP) — West German First Division football club Hamburg Sunday won the second Cannes International Football Tournament when they beat French First Division rivals Nice 4-1 (half-time 1-1) here.

Magath (25), Bastrup (60), Lessen (63) and Hieronymus were the scorers for Hamburg and Schaar replied for Nice in the 42nd minute.

In a playoff for third place Cannes heat Dortmund 3-2, Gudmund (46), Fusch (52) and Anlot (86) scored for the home club and Klotz (1 and 80) netted both for Dortmund. Meanwhile Stuttgart striker Hansi Mueller is still not ready to make his planned comeback following a knee operation on Nov. 8 last year.

On his return from the Canary Islands, where he trained on sand for two hours a day, Mueller refuted that his knee had swollen up again. He had intended to make his comeback in the League Championship against Dusseldorf on Jan. 16.

As Europe came out of the grip of the blizzard, matches all over the Continent were gone through Sunday. The three "Great" clubs of Spanish football — FC Barcelona, Real Madrid and Real Sociedad of San Sebastian — are elbow-to-elbow at the top of the country's First Division after this weekend's matches.

Madrid and the San Sebastian team shared two goals, but Barcelona's chances of remaining the sole leader was upset by Cadiz. Barcelona lost by a solitary goal, but were still there at the top with Madrid and Sociedad — all having 25 points.

Fiorentina held onto sole leadership in the Italian Football First Division when they won 4-2 at home to Inter-Milan. But third-placed Roma were beaten 1-0 by Naples in the only shock victory of the day.

The Belgian Football Cup witnessed two surprise exits. League champions Anderlecht, and current leaders, were eliminated from the last 16 of the Cup when they suffered a 3-1 defeat away against Waterschei. RWD Molenbeek was the other fancied club to make the exit from the competition, losing 3-0 at home to Lokoren.

World Cup Rodeo U.S. corners limelight

MELBOURNE, Jan. 4 (AP) — United States riders consolidated their lead in the World Cup Rodeo at Melbourne's Royal Agricultural Society showgrounds on Monday.

Before a crowd of only about 100 — after publicity from animal lovers and protests that have halted the calf roping competition — the Americans took their overall points tally to 128,460 ahead of Australia.

Third were the Canadians — boosted by top performance Monday by Jim Dunn and Robin Burwash, both from Alberta. Dunn, Burwash, and Texan Jack Ward were joint leaders on 69 points in the second go-around after three performances.

Australia's leading performer was Errol Lather, from Braxholme in western Victoria. Lather was sharing top placing in the saddle bronc riding with Ken Figueroa on 71 points. Third was Canadian Dallas Powell on 70 points.

Texan P.K. Walker was a clear leader in the bull riding, on 79 points — four points clear of his nearest rival, Greg Schlosser of Alberta, Canada, was on 75 points, with Glen Younger from Grand Junction, Colorado, one point further back.

Anson Thurman of Nevada was leading the steer wrestling on 4.4 with Jerry Jones of Las Vegas and Gary McPhee from Lurg tied on 4.7.

The World Cup Rodeo continues on Tuesday and moves to Sydney after Thursday's events.

Progressive results: leaders: second go-around after three performances: J. Dunn (Alberta, Can) 3, Ward (Texas, US) and R. Burwash (Alberta, Can) all 69 pts. Saddle Bronc: E. Lather (Braxholme, Vic) and K. Figueroa (California, US) 71 pts, Dallas Powell (Can) 70, Bull Riding: P. Walker (Texas, US) 79 pts, G. Schlosser (Alberta, Can) 75, G. Younger (Colorado, US) 74. Steer wrestling: A. Thurman (Nevada, US) 4.4, J. Jones (Nevada, US) and G. McPhee (Lurg, Vic) 4.7, overall: US 128.4 pts, Australia 65.1, Canada 42.3.

Calcutta Test keenly poised

CALCUTTA, Jan. 4 (AFP) — England, for the first time in the current series against India, have a fine chance to make up their 0-1 deficit if they can exploit their advantageous position when the fourth Test resumes after a day's rest, at Eden Gardens Tuesday.

England, who at 49 for one in their second innings, hold a sizeable 89 runs lead with nine wickets in hand, have now two full days, in which to settle the issue. But with the wicket yet to respond to the spinners apart from an occasional ball keeping low, England skipper Keith Fletcher will have to take the initiative to pile up at least 200 runs to be in a position to dismiss India in their second innings.

But judging by the tenor of the first three days' play England could be in difficulty trying to up their run rate. Neither side has so far managed as much as 200 runs a day. On the first day, England scored 198 runs in 82 overs, while the next day saw only 155 runs in 80 overs. Sunday the score rate was no better, with 152 runs coming in 71 overs.

But England could be struggling if Indian fast bowler Kapil Dev, with six first innings wickets in the bag, keeps up his form and combines well with the other pacemen Madanlal. The two will be looking to repeat their Bombay triumph when they mopped up the England second innings in 26.2 overs taking five wickets each.

Much will depend on the outcome of Tuesday's pre-lunch session. Opener Graham Gooch, who hit a patient 30 Sunday, will resume the innings Tuesday with Chris Tavare on 13.

BRIEFS

LONDON, (AFP) — The England team which beat Australia 15-11 on Saturday, will be unchanged for their opening match of the Rugby Union home International Championship against Scotland, at Murrayfield, on Jan. 16.

Liverpool winger Mike Slemen, who came off with concussion in the second half at Twickenham, is expected to be fit, although he has withdrawn from the Barbarians team to face the Wallabies in the final tour game at Cardiff on Saturday.

TOULOUSE, (AFP) — French Rugby Union star Jean Pierre Rives will definitely play for the Barbarians against Australia in Cardiff next week, he announced here Sunday. He will be playing his first senior game since the July operation to cure a persistent shoulder injury.

PARIS, (AFP) — French yacht Gauloise III lost its mast Sunday night on the eighth day of the third leg of the Round The World Yacht Race, skipper Eric Loizeau said in a radio message received here. The Yacht, placed 12 in compensated time standings on the second leg from Cape Town to Auckland, was among the ten leaders on the current Auckland to Mar Del Plata section when the accident happened.

OSLO, (AFP) — Swedish Olympic champion Thomas Wassberg won the 16 km Monoclit Cross Country race in Frognerparken the central park in Oslo — Sunday, beating Norwegian experts like Oddvar Braa and Paul Gunnar Mikkelsplass. The long-established race, marks the opening of the 1982 international ski season here and comes only a month and a half before the World Championship, also to be held in Oslo.

BRAZIL, (AP) — Joao Carlos de Oliveira, the Brazilian world record holder on the triple jump who suffered a near-fatal car crash last month, continued to improve Sunday and doctors said they have postponed plans for further surgery.

World hockey fever hots up

By G. K. Menon Special Correspondent

BOMBAY, Jan. 4 — Teams, aspiring for a place in the semifinals, will come back fresh after a day's rest to renew battle on Tuesday in the Fifth World Cup Hockey Tournament.

With the first six days of the competition providing a keen tussle, the teams, in with a chance of qualifying, will make their final effort in the coming three days — after which the knockout semifinals commence with another rest day.

Only Pakistan and Germany have virtually assured themselves of berths. Both have equal number of points in pool "A", but the mode in which they have obtained them is in sharp contrast. While Pakistan dazzled its way to the top of the pool, West Germany has kept its slate clean with to their dogged defense. In all its three matches Germany has struggled and was lucky enough to secure full points from each.

Both, Pakistan and Germany, clash Tuesday and the outcome of this match will provide the pool winner. Pakistan faces Poland in its last league engagement. This match could also be interesting as the Polish team, after losing opening match against Germany, has kept itself in the fray with two hard-earned victories over Argentina and Spain.

But Poland faces two tough matches, they play Pakistan and New Zealand, and its chances of beating them is slim. Its only hope being that West Germany losing both its matches and Poland in turn scraping up at least three points from its encounters. Germany plays Spain in its last tie and even a draw should see them through.

The picture in Pool "B", however, is still not clear. Though the Netherlands and Australia maintained their unbeaten runs till the halfway stage of the league competition, Olympic champions India came into the reckoning again with its thumping 7-2 victory over the Soviet Union. And these three vie for two spots from the pool. Both the Netherlands and Australia play each other in what may prove to be the crucial tie of the pool.

The Netherlands task is comparatively easy as it has Soviet Union as its last league opponent, while Australia runs into India, which may well prove to be the decision tie. India tackles England before its final match against Australia and a victory over England could place it as a strong contender. The factor which may aid India if it wins its remaining two matches and the three teams finish level on points, will be its better goal difference.

Despite the strict enforcement of the penalty-corner awards there has been a good quantum of field goals, emphasizing the fluidity of the forwards. And off the 12 participating nations, the Pakistani and Indian forwards have been a visual treat. Though individual brilliance of Bouwmann and Tom Van 't Hek have proved to be the ace up the Netherlands' sleeve.

Rajinder Singh of India heads the list of scorers with six goals with three players sharing the second spot. Roderick Bouwmann Manzur-ul-Hassan and Hassan Sardar (both Pakistan) have five each.

Tuesday's fixtures: Pool "A": Pakistan vs West Germany; New Zealand vs Argentina. Pool "B": Netherlands vs Australia; England vs Malaysia.

Kupreichik regains lead in Hastings Chess

HASTINGS, England, Jan. 4 (AP) — Soviet grandmaster Viktor Kupreichik regained the lead Sunday in round six of the grandmaster tournament of the ICL-Hastings International Chess Congress.

After drawing his adjourned fourth-round game against Shaun Taulbut of Britain, he played strong, aggressive chess against Hans Ree, the Netherlands grandmaster wielding the white pieces, and won in 40 moves.

Paul Littlewood, the British Open champion, was 1-2 point behind Kupreichik, though Littlewood appeared to be in a losing position to Manuel Rivas, the Spanish international master, when their game was adjourned.

Reigning Hastings champion Ulf Andersson, the Swedish grandmaster, was still unbeaten and in third place. Playing black and seeking a record fourth successive title, he could only manage a tame draw with Vassily Smyslov of the Soviet Union. The pair each took a bishop, rook and pawn before closing the game up.

The two American grandmasters were having a disappointing tournament. Anatoly Lein, a Soviet emigre now a U.S. citizen, had drawn five and lost one of his six games and Larry Christiansen had managed only three draws. Taulbut drew with Lein on Sunday. Christiansen was mated in 41 moves by Murray Chandler of Wellington, New Zealand.

Two Britons, Jonathan Spielman and Nigel Short, drew in 22 moves. Jonathan Mestel, of Britain, and Laszlo Szabo, of Hungary, adjourned.

Tottenham plays Leeds at home

LONDON, Jan. 4, (R) — Tottenham's remarkable run of luck in the English Football Association (FA) Cup continued Monday when they received a home tie against Leeds United in the fourth round draw.

The holders have played outside London just once in their last 14 FA Cup ties, in last year's semifinal against Wolverhampton at the neutral Hillsborough ground in Sheffield. Tottenham drew that match but won the replay at Highbury in London.

But Tottenham's good fortune was not enough to make them favorites with the bookmakers. They were quoted at 5-1 to repeat their triumph of last season behind 9-2 favorites Liverpool, drawn away to Second Division Rotherham or First Division strugglers Sunderland, who have still to replay after drawing on Saturday.

Two other First Division giants did not fare so well in the draw and face hazardous trips to Second Division grounds. Ipswich have to play runaway league leaders Luton while West Ham face Watford, third round conquerors of Manchester United.

Due to the recent bad weather only six of the 16 ties are clear-cut and one of the more confusing draws brought together Shrewsbury or Port Vale and Bury or Burnley or Altrincham.

Despite Abdul-Jabbar's presence

Lakers perform in fits & starts

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's return to the Los Angeles Lakers was hardly a rousing success rather, it was a disaster. But it wouldn't be fair to blame the all-pro center.

Abdul-Jabbar missed six games because of a strained tendon in his right ankle, the Lakers won all six games, but their streak came to a resounding end Sunday night.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 26 points, grabbed 16 rebounds, had four assists and blocked three shots in his first action since Dec. 17, but the Lakers started horribly and finished even worse in suffering a 110-90 setback to the Seattle SuperSonics.

In other National Basketball Association action Sunday night, Denver downed Milwaukee 128-122 and Portland topped Kansas City 127-116 overtime.

"Maybe it's an adjustment with Kareem coming back. But whatever it is, I don't think it will take them long to get it all back together," said Seattle guard Gus Williams, who scored 10 of his game-high 27 points in the fourth quarter.

Los Angeles appeared sluggish as the Sonics scored the game's first seven points and extended their advantage to 36-20 after one quarter. It was 58-45 late in the first half when the Lakers got hot.

Los Angeles scored the final four points of the first-half to make it 58-49, and the first eight points of the second-half to draw to within one point of Seattle. Shortly thereafter, the Lakers led 71-64 and appeared on their way to a seventh straight victory.

However, the Sonics, 19-11, dominated the rest of the game, outscoring the Lakers 46-19 in the final 18 minutes of play. Seattle led by only one point, 78-77, entering the fourth quarter, but trailed 13 of the period's first 17 points for a 10-point lead. The rest was easy.

Ronnie Shelton added 25 points and 12 rebounds and Jack Sikma had 17 points and 20 rebounds for the Sonics, who out-rebounded the Lakers 56-49. Jamaal Wilkes and Norm Nixon added 24 and 18 points, respectively, for the Lakers. Magic Johnson was held to nine points, but he had a game-high 14 assists and nine rebounds.

Nuggets 128, Bucks 122: Alex English scored 38 points and Kiki Vandeweghe added 25 as Denver snapped Milwaukee's five-game winning streak. The Nuggets trailed 67-65 at half-time, but Dan Issel scored 10 points in the third quarter as Denver outscored the Bucks 41-25 to take a 106-92 lead. The Nuggets shot at a 68-percent clip in the third quarter.

English hit 14 of 21 shots from the field and was 10-for-10 at the free throw line for the Nuggets. Marques Johnson led the Bucks with 21 points.

Blazers 127, Kings 116: Two three-point goals by Kelvin Ransey and one by Jim Paxson in the final minutes of the regulation period sent Portland into overtime against Kansas City, then the Trail Blazers routed the Kings 16-5 in the extra period.

Calvin Natt scored 28 points to lead Portland, but it was the second three-pointer by Ransey that overcame a 111-108 Kansas City deficit with six seconds to go. Rookie Steve Johnson scored 33 points and had 18 rebounds for the Kings.

Johnny Miller... a budding punter

Johnny Miller strikes it rich

SUN CITY, Bophuthatswana, Jan. 4 (Agencies) — American Johnny Miller snatched the richest prize in golf history when he won the five-man Sun City Challenge after an astonishing nine-hole play-off against Spaniard Severiano Ballesteros Sunday.

The two men put 71's to tie on 11-under 277 after four rounds of the $ one million invitation event and stayed deadlocked over the first eight holes of their tense sudden-death play-off. Then, on the ninth extra hole, Ballesteros missed a putt which cost him $340,000.

Miller, who trailed fifth and last after the first round, took the first prize of $500,000, while the Spaniard had to be content with the runners-up prize of $160,000. American superstar Jack Nicklaus shot a two under par 69 for 278 and third place. But although he earned $130,000, he will be counting the cost of missing a simple putt on the 72nd green which deprived him of a place in the play-off. Lee Trevino, fourth on 289 after a 71, picked up $110,000, while South African Gary Player received $100,000 — more than the winner of the British Open — for finishing last on 290.

Miller, once the game's golden boy but self-proclaimed as the fifth man in this elite event. Tournament officials already had decided that was as far as it was going to go. Darkness was encroaching and had the play-off not ended there, it would have been postponed until Monday.

Miller and Ballesteros finished the regulation 72 holes tied at 11-under par 277. Each shot a 71 over the last 18 holes of regulation. Then the play-off started. It began on the 18th and they matched strokes through three circuits around the 16th, 17th and 18th before Miller's routine, two-putt par won it. Ballesteros, who had stayed alive with a great scrambling par on the eighth play-off hole, hit his approach some 50 feet from the cup on the decisive hole. He left his first putt about four feet short and then missed that one.

Jack Nicklaus missed the playoff by a single stroke. He failed on a short, par-saving putt of about three feet on the 72nd hole to fall out of a tie for the top spot. Nicklaus, generally regarded as the finest player the game has known, was four strokes back of Miller and Ballesteros at the turn, then put on one of his great charges.

Johnny Mathis and race driver James Hunt won the celebrity program section of the event.

Border, Yardley in breezy stand

Aussies avert follow-on

SYDNEY, Jan. 4 (AP) — Only an early breakthrough on Tuesday by the Australian bowlers can swing the advantage away from the West Indies in the second Test at the Sydney Cricket ground.

At the close of play Monday the West Indies were 93 for two in their second innings, 210 runs ahead of Australia with eight second innings wickets in hand. The not out batsmen were Desmond Haynes 37 and Larry Gomes 20. Two days of play remain and the West Indians look set to dictate the tactics for the balance of the Test.

They can decide to give Australia a sizeable target to chase by late Tuesday and go all out on the final day, or close up and force the Test to a painful draw, to move on to Adelaide with the possibility of a tied series.

But the Caribbean cricketers are known more for their positive approach to the game and Australia could well be put through the hoops if the West Indians go for an outright win.

The Australians were 267 all out at tea after starting the day at 111 for three. Earlier in the day it was highly likely Australia would not make the 185 needed to avert a follow-on. But a whirlwind eighth-wicket partnership of 70 between Bruce Yardley and Allan Border pulled the Australians through some agonizing moments.

Yardley is having a golden summer and put on another great performance Monday. He clouted 45 runs — including seven fours — to all parts of the ground in 58 minutes from 33 deliveries. He hatted, as though the Australians were ahead and not behind and was an model to some more qualified batsmen higher up the batting order.

The morning session was a disaster for Australia, even allowing for the likelihood that nightwatchmen Terry Alderman would go early — which he did when Sylvester Clarke captured his wicket without scoring. But the dismissal of Greg Chappell for only 12 and Kim Hughes for 16 were unexpected blows.

Chappell looked as if he was getting into his stride after 45 minutes at the crease but then he played an uncharacteristic poke into the slips off Holding's bowling and Jeffery Dujon took a presentation catch. A short time later Kim Hughes left a yawning gap between bat and pad and was bowled by Garner for 16.

It was left to Rodney Marsh and Allan Border to steer the Australians from 141 for six to 172 for six in the over before lunch. Marsh was restrained and responsible as the total climbed toward the vital 185-run mark.

But then he hooked spinner Gomes and the eager hands of Michael Holding snapped up Australia's seventh wicket. It was left to Yardley and Border after lunch to give Australia some pride in their batting again. It was outcable that Yardley was able to frustrate the usually tight line and length of the West Indian pace attack, while Border played more correctly if not aggressively.

West Indian paceman Holding finished with five wickets for 64 from 29 overs including nine maidens. His bag included Wood, Dyson, Chappell, Yardley and finally Dennis Lillee.

Wood was X-rayed Monday morning following a fielding injury from the first day's play. He batted on Sunday for his top score of 63 in the Australian first innings with a badly jarred left hand. But the overnight X-ray showed only bruising in the middle knuckle area of the hand without any fracture.

Pakistan scores big victory

LAUNCESTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Pakistan defeated Tasmania by ten wickets at the NTC ground Launceston here Monday.

Tasmania was 316 all out in their second innings, leaving Pakistan three runs for victory. Ashraf Ali hit a boundary in the fourth over after three successive maidens to give the Pakistanis their first victory against an Australian state.

Tasmania resumed Monday morning at 221 for four wickets with wicket keeper Roger Woolley 19 not out and nightwatchman Peter Clough still to score. The Tasmanians lasted just over three hours as they lost their remaining six wickets for the addition of 95 runs.

Woolley was the first man dismissed when he was caught at slip by Javed Miandad off Iqbal Qasim for 37. The other batsmen dismissed in the pre-lunch session was all-rounder Nick Allanby, who lasted only 21 minutes before being bowled by Qasim.

After lunch the Tasmanians lost their remaining four wickets for 29 runs in 65 minutes. Nightwatchman Clough batted on Monday for 165 minutes before being out for 34 — his highest score in first class cricket. Clough, who normally bats at number eleven, went in eight minutes before the close of play Sunday. When Woolley was at the crease, Tasmania looked to have a chance of salvaging the match.

But when Qasim broke the partnership, the rest of the Tasmanian batsmen offered little resistance. They saved an innings defeat when the last batsman in, Phillip Blizard, leg glanced Tahir Naqash for four. Blizard was out two balls later lbw — the fourth 'leg before' dismissal of the innings.

Tasmania showed far more resistance in its second innings and finished with 316, after being bowled out for 158 on Friday. They also forced the Pakistanis to bat again. Although the pitch was unpredictable and the ball was keeping low.

Pakistan's previous victory in a first class match had been its win by an innings and 82 runs over Australia in the Melbourne Test. The tourists now fly to Stawell in Victoria for a one-day game against Victoria country on Wednesday (January 6) after which they return to Melbourne to resume their Benson and Hedges World Series Cup limited-over international campaign.

BRIEF SCORES: Tasmania 158 and 316 (R. Jeffery 37, D. Boon 49; B. Davidson 72; R. Woolley 37; P. Clough 34; Imran Khan 3 for 84, Tahir Naqash 4 for 60, Qasim 2 for 54) lost to Pakistan 472 for 5 wks. decl. and four for no wkt.

Good response for Al-Khobar tennis tourney

By Geoff Gardner

DHAHRAN, Jan. 4 — Promising to be once again Saudi Arabia's largest sports tournament, the 1982 Al-Khobar Tennis Tournament swings into action Jan. 7. With 288 separate entries, and many of these players entered in more than one event, the tourney has drawn the finest players in the area.

Last year's dominant force in singles and doubles, Ben Borth, is the favorite to retain the First Flight singles title that he easily won last year. Second seed is the 1980 winner Abu Bakr Sulaiman, who fell to Borth 6-3, 6-0 in last year's final.

The men's singles — the first of the five events in the three month long tournament — begins at 8:30 a.m., Jan. 7 at the University of Petroleum and Minerals courts. In all, 176 men will compete in ten flights. Flight competition allows players to vie against others of similar ability. Yet a major change in the tournament format this year is a plate competition for first round, First Flight losers.

"In the men's singles there are 31 players in Flight One, while last year there were 16," tournament director Steve Brew, said. "There were so many players who wanted to play in the top flights that we decided to shut those knocked out in the first round would go into another competition. This gives them another chance. It's really like another Flight Two." All finals will be played Jan. 15, with Flight One finals at 4:00 p.m., culminating successive weekends of tennis.

The ladies' singles follow, on the Khodari Compound (Northrop), beginning Feb. 25 and concluding with Flight One finals Mar. 5 at 2:45 p.m. Sixty ladies will compete in five flights. The Flight One favorite is, again Diane Jackson, who has won the title the past two years. Her toughest competition is expected to come from second-seeded Pat Aubrey.

The men's doubles follows. Seven flights of teams begin action Mar. 11 with Flight One finals at 4:00 p.m. the following day. The top-seeded pair in Flight One is David Bosch and Roger Tooth. Gerry Waldron and Bilal Al-Rashid are rated second. Borth, last year's co-winner of the men's doubles title, is seeded third with partner Mark Astoo. All matches will be at the University of Petroleum and Minerals courts.

The ladies' doubles matches will also be played at the Northrop courts. Top seeds are the team of Diane Jackson and Cynthia Copeland with Pat Aubrey and June Brandie second. Copeland and Jackson were on opposite sides of the net in last year's final, which Jackson and partner Wendy Jones won 6-4, 6-3. The smallest draw in the tournament, the four flights will be played March 18-19. Flight One finals are scheduled for 2:45 p.m.

The five-flight mixed doubles concludes the tournament. Play starts April 1 and finishes April 9 at 2:45 p.m. with Flight One finals. Last year's winners, Ted and Cynthia Copeland are the top seeds, with Borth and Brandie expected to give them the toughest competition as the second-seeded team. All play will be at the University of Petroleum and Minerals faculty and Staff Recreation

Italian bags Rolex tennis crown

PORT WASHINGTON, New York, Jan. 4 (AP) — Francesco Cancellotti, the Italian junior champion, won the boys' 18-year-old title in the Rolex International Junior Tennis Championships Sunday, defeating Sweden's Henrik Sundstrom 6-4, 7-5.

Cancellotti, seeded sixth, snapped Sundstrom's service in the seventh game of the first set. After they had exchanged breaks with Sundstrom pulling even at 5-5 in the second set, the Italian broke Sundstrom again in the 11th game and converted his second match point in the 12th game.

American Janet Lagasse, playing in her first international tournament, woo the girls' 18-year-old title, downing fellow American Heather Ettus 6-3, 6-2.

Center.

As was the case last year, players are required to bring a new can of balls for each match. The winner receives the new can, and the loser takes the used game balls.

"We used to ship them in because they are so expensive to buy here," Brew said. "We were using 500-600 cans of balls at SR20 a can. With the problems and extra cost of shipping, we decided to spend the money (from entry fees and sponsor contributions) on better prizes."

Silverware and crystalware will be awarded to winners and runners-up in all Flights of the five events.

Aramcans are eligible to play in the singles only if invited to play doubles with another Eastern Province resident. another policy begun last year.

After years of growth since the first tournament was played on a single court at the American Consulate in Dhahran, entry numbers seem to have stabilized. Yet the purpose of the original tournament years ago with its 24-player draw was the same as it is now — to allow non-Aramcans an opportunity to play tournament tennis.

Unseeded Michael Westphal of West Germany dimaxed an impressive week, whipping second-seeded Olli Rahasto of Finland 6-2, 6-1 in the boys' 16-year-old final. Westphal, the European, 16-year-old champion, won the match in 70 minutes.

Third-seeded Jennifer Fuchs, U.S., rallied to beat fifth-seeded Helena Olsson of Sweden 2-6, 6-3, 6-3 in the girls' 16-year-old final.

Christer Allgahrd of Sweden beat Christian Miniussi of Argentina 6-0, 6-1 in the boys' 14-year-old title match, while sixth-seeded Shawn Foltz, U.S., upset top-seeded Grace Kim, U.S., 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 for the girls' 14-year-old title.

Volunteering is traditional

Mousehold lifeboat men save lives, ask only thanks in fighting the sea

By William Tuohy

MOUSEHOLE, England, (LAT) — A towering, gray-green wave crashed across the slip of the Penlee Point Lifeboat Station and a Force 8 gale tore at the boat's flag.

"It's hard to imagine what the sea must have been like that Saturday night when the lifeboat crew launched into a Force 12 (hurricane force) storm," a local man said, staring at the angry sea.

But launch they did, and eight lifeboat men from Penlee Point died trying to rescue the crew of a coastal vessel drifting powerless toward the rocky Cornwall coast, near land's end in southwest England.

The eight lifeboat men all came from Mousehole (pronounced mau-zell), a village of granite cottages clinging to steep hills around the harbor, and nearly every family in the community was affected.

Of the crew's effort, Lt. Cmdr. Russell Smith, a U.S. Navy helicopter pilot who also tried to save the coastal vessel's crew, had this to say:

"I have done 2,000 hours of flying, and those were the worst weather conditions I've ever come across. To go out in that kind of weather, they must have been very, very brave."

Yet the day after the disaster there was no lack of volunteers among Mousehole men to replace the crew at Penlee Point, which is traditionally manned by this community.

For being accepted as one of the 3,000 volunteer crew members for the 258 boats of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution is a mark of distinction. In communities around the coast of the United Kingdom and the republic of Ireland, there are waiting lists. As a Lifeboat Institute official put it:

"There is a great tradition among them. It is passed down from generation to generation. The lifeboat is the central part of these communities, and volunteers reflect the spirit of ordinary people prepared to rise up to emergencies."

This tip of Cornwall gets the full force of some of the worst weather found anywhere, as the Atlantic Ocean, swept by winter gales, tries to force itself into the English Channel. The lifeboat crews must put to sea under the most barrowing conditions.

"Distress calls can come any time, day or night," said Cmdr. George Cooper, the tall, rangy operations officer for the Lifeboat Institution, who is conducting an inquiry in nearby Penzance into the recent disaster. "And they are always answered, up to 30 miles out to sea."

In the old Coastguard Inn at Mousehole, decorated with photos of shipwrecks and lifeboat crews, a friend of the lost boatmen stared at the waves booming over the harbor breakwater and said:

"They always go. The station calls them at home or at one of the inns. They also set off a maroon — that's a rocket — and the noise and the lights alert the whole village."

Cmdr. Cooper quoted a saying that is heard among the lifeboat crews: "Go ye must — return ye may."

One of the most decorated men in the service is Brian Bevean, 35, who is in charge of the city of Bradford lifeboat, based at the mouth of the Humber River in the northeast of England.

In one year, Bevean was awarded the Institute's gold, silver and bronze medals.

"You don't think of the danger," he told an interviewer. "It's just a job — with a bit of difference, because you can help others. There are not many jobs like that ..."

"When you pull the last bloke off a ship and watch it roll over and sink, and someone says, 'thank you very much,' well, that's why we do it. If I were in trouble, I'd like to know there was someone out there coming to the rescue."

His wife, Susan, said: "If I thought that every time Brian went out it would be the last time I would see him, I would go mad. I never make a big thing about saying goodbye. It's always 'ta ta, see you later,' and 'have you got your tobacco?'"

The Royal National Lifeboat Institution is all-volunteer, except for administrative personnel. It is totally independent of the government.

Since it was founded in 1824, lifeboat men have saved more than 106,000 lives at sea, and they have paid the price: 272 have been lost in rescue operations.

Last year, the service saved 1,215 persons from death at sea in the course of about 3,000 rescue missions, the highest total in five years. The service operates at about 250 stations. Smaller stations are open only in summer, for the protection of vacation boaters.

The stations are placed in such colorful-sounding locations as Mumbels, in Wales; Ambleside, in northeast England; Buckle, in Scotland, and Bally Cotton, in Ireland.

"The institution is a registered charity," Cooper said. "All our income comes from voluntary contributions."

"This year, it cost us about $30 million to run the Royal National Lifeboat Institution. For every dollar donated, 76 cents is spent on maintaining the fleet, building new lifeboats and purchasing new equipment. Sixteen cents is used for fund-raising and eight cents for administration."

The institution's lifeboats range from 52-footers that cost $700,000 each down to 16-foot inflatable boats that cost $7,000.

Fund-raising has been a critical part of institution's task ever since it was founded. There are two main sources of income. One consists of legacies, trusts and special gifts from private donors; the other is made up of 2,000 local fund-raising chapters throughout Britain and Ireland.

For $6 a year, you can join Shoreline, an organization that gives you a membership in the Royal National Lifeboat Institution and entitles you to wear the distinctive tie, with its blue-red-and-white-crossed flag plus crown and anchor.

"We have a lot of members of Shoreline in America," Cooper said.

Since the Penlee disaster, funds have been pouring into the institution's headquarters at Poole, in Dorset.

In the last 25 years, rescues have increased dramatically, according to Cooper, because of the enormous popularity of recreational boating. And lifeboats powered by the muscle of the oarsmen have given way to modern, self-righting craft powered by twin diesel engines.

"Usually there is an eight-man crew to each lifeboat," Cooper said, "and we usually have an average of 21-22 crews to a station — about 20 to 25 men."

"Often, the motor mechanic is a full-time, paid hand, but the rest of them are volunteers, including the coxswain, who is in charge of the boat at sea."

TORRENTIAL RAINS: Despite impassable roads and bad conditions, Lifeboat Institute crewmen leave their families and head for their boats.

ROUGH WEATHER: No matter how bad the seas get off the coast of England, the Royal National Lifeboat Institute's 3,000 volunteer crew members are on constant alert to rescue crewmen disabled at sea. The institute has 258 lifeboats.

New Zealand promoting venison sales, extensive herds raised on deer farms

By Bruce Keppel

WANGANUI, New Zealand (LAT) — The white stag was visible beyond a fence and across the stream, surrounded by a mixed herd of red and fallow deer.

"Twenty years ago, I used to shoot deer from the road on my way home from Wellington," Robbie Gittins told a recent visitor. He leaned on the farm fence and shook his head at the change.

Twenty years ago, Gittins explained, deer were marked for extinction under New Zealand's Noxious Pests Act. Deer competed for pasture needed by valuable sheep and cattle; they also speeded erosion by denuding slopes of vegetation.

The existence of this herd across the stream illustrates a more recent chapter in the deer's history in New Zealand — one shaped by the whims and needs of man.

The story began in 1850 when colonists introduced deer from England, and later from Australia, to provide targets for hunters on these two isolated South Pacific islands. Even with lush vegetation the islands are naturally endowed with just two species of hat, the rare Maori rat, and the wingless Kiwi, now the national bird.

Unrestrained by natural predators, the deer population grew to menacing proportions. To check the population the Forestry Service paid hunters a bounty in exchange for each slain deer's tail.

In the 1950s, when the government began requiring its bounty hunters to dispose of the carcasses — venison still had not caught on as dining delicacy in New Zealand — a small export market developed, mainly to West Germany.

By 1972-73, 4,000 tons of venison were shipped out of New Zealand, a total that had grown steadily each year.

Deer became more valuable alive than dead. Farmers sought to raise their own deer herds for export, and now they paid hunters for live animals, especially hinds, to increase their stock. The New Zealand Deer Farmers Association was formed in 1975 to protect this fledgling industry.

Then a curious thing happened: Chinese and Korean entrepreneurs began bidding for the annual growth of young antler, sending the price of horn soaring from $6 a pound to as much as $120 a pound last year, the association reported.

"At the peak there was a gold-rush mentality," said Mike Pattison, the association's executive officer.

The freshly grown antler, encased in the fuzzy, blood-filled skin called "velvet," is a basic ingredient in China's traditional medicine. It is used as a general health tonic in Korea, which furnishes New Zealand with its main antler export market.

With velvet antlers bringing more than $600 an animal, while venison fetched only $400, slaughtering came to a virtual halt. Pattison said during an interview in Wellington. From about 5,000 head of deer on farms in 1975, the domesticated population soared to an estimated 150,000 head on 1,100 farms.

"You'd gone from a pest-control operation, with no commercial aspect, to the realization that there was a profit to be made in the export market," Pattison said.

Then last year, as quickly as it began, the "gold rush" in velvet ended. The price plummeted $50 a pound from the $120-high point.

"What tipped the scales," reported the New Zealand Economist in an industry survey, "was the diversion by China (normally a velvet producer for its own domestic market) of large quantities of velvet to Korea prior to the arrival of New Zealand shipments." The magazine held out hope, however, that farmers' attention would now refocus on venison, "which in the long run, must be the product on which ultimate success of the industry depends."

This year, Pattison said, meat packing plants are being built to prepare for expanded venison exportation, including to the United States. The horn, which is still part of the harvest (under an anesthesia administered by a supervising veterinarian), will be only one element of the modern industry, he said. The animals also will provide revenue from their hide, even their eyeteeth (valued as earrings in Germany) and their flesh.

Bangkok cold wave is severe

BANGKOK, Thailand — This southeast Asian country is in the grip of a cold wave, relatively speaking. And what's more, it's going to get colder, weatherman warned.

Bangkok citizens broke out in sweaters and jackets last week as the temperature plummeted to the low 60s. They are more accustomed to the high 90s.

"This weather may suit Americans just fine," said a Thai woman dentist "but just look at the goose pimples on my arms."

While Bangkokians joked about the weather, there was nothing funny about the chill that has fallen over mountainous northern Thailand. To cope with temperatures in the 30s and 40s, the government rushed thousands of blankets to needy families. Welfare organizations appealed for donations of heavy clothing and blankets.

In some places children stayed home from school because of the cold, said to be the severest since 1975. That officials said that in past cold spells some people have died in northern Thailand.

In Bangkok there was a bright side to the cold snap. Many Thais could turn off their air conditioners and save on their electricity bills.

"It has also been a very patriotic cold spell," wrote a Bangkok Post columnist, "helping to cut down Thailand's energy consumption in accordance with government policy."

San Francisco the best city; Thailand has best buys

By Michael Carlton

DALLAS (LAT) — In a year of travel, in a year of moving about this globe of ours for more than 100,000 miles while visiting more than two score countries and half the states, a traveler finds both highs and lows, the good and the bad and occasionally the ugly. Here are our personal choices of the very best and the very worst of 1981:

Best U.S. City — San Francisco, which always wins.

Worst U.S. City — St. Louis. It is too humid, there is nothing much to do; a pall of death and decay hangs over the place.

Most Surprising City — Memphis, with some of the best blues, some of the nicest people, and some of the most exciting river-side renovation in the nation.

Best Buy — The silk pillow cases made by the Jim Thompson factory in Thailand that cost $2 there but about $40 here.

Worst Buy — The $200 wool suit made in Taiwan that lasted exactly five wearings before it puckered up and died.

Best Ride — The TGV, the "Very Fast Train" the French government has developed between Lyon and Paris. It goes 165 mph and whisks you between the two cities in style.

Worst Ride — The ride around Maui to Hana. The scenery is beautiful but the ride is bumpy and twisting.

Best Hotel — In a year when we tried such establishments as the Stanford Court and the Fairmont in San Francisco, the Ritz in Paris, the Regent in Hong Kong, the Hotel Bora Bora in French Polynesia, the Silverado Country Club in the Napa Valley, L'Ermitage in Los Angeles, the New Camino Real in Ixtapa, the new Hyatt in Maui and the fine new Hilton in Cartagena, Colombia, it was hard to pick just one. My vote goes to the Cheeca Lodge in Islamorada, Fla. The rooms are magnificent, opening onto the fine ocean surrounding the Florida keys; the service is exemplary; the food superb. Added to this are lovely grounds, including a golf course, tennis courts and swimming pool, a sand beach, and the opportunity to catch bonefish just offshore. A delightfully well-run resort hotel.

Worst Hotel — No problem with this one at all. The Hilton in Curacao in the Netherlands Antilles is a runaway winner. The room was so filthy your feet were black in the time it took you to walk from the bathroom to the balcony, the plaster was cracked, the radio did not work, room service took one hour for a continental breakfast, the lobby reeked, the nightclub charged outrageous prices.

Best Restaurant — Again a tough one to call. From three stars in Paris to ribs in Austin to creole in New Orleans to stone crab in Miami Beach, this has been a good year for the palate. If a had one for the wainline. The single best meal of the year while traveling was probably the one served at the Squire Restaurant in the San Francisco Fairmont. From the beginning duck liver to the superb soufflé at the end of the meal, everything — food, service, ambience — was perfect. An honorable mention has to go to Commander's Palace in New Orleans that has the best brunch in town, far superior to that served at Brennan's especially if you sit in the outdoor courtyard, which must be the most romantic and charming place to dine on the continent.

Worst Restaurant — The island of Ixtapa has a ramshackle fish restaurant where scores of tourists dine daily. My red snapper was remarkable only for the huge, live creature hidden inside. I'm not sure what it was, but the creature was big enough that I didn't want to argue with it.

Best Foreign Airline — As usual, the Orient took the award (only SAS has been able to break the domination in the past five years). This year Japan Air Lines wins for its excellent in-flight service, caring flight attendants, innovative food (European and Oriental) and always on-time performance.

Worst Foreign Airline — Another Oriental winner, the Far East Asian Transport Company (FAT for short) of Taiwan is the least professional airline in Asia with poor service, lackluster attendants, and aging aircraft.

Best U.S. Airline — The air controllers' strike has helped make flying little more than boarding a cattle car, but American Airlines has managed to be consistently on time, serves better rubber chicken than most airlines and has some of the most professional flight attendants in the sky. Frontier's all one-class service ranks a very close second.

Worst U.S. Airlines — Texas International is an easy winner. On a recent flight to Mexico, the airline was late, the food was inedible and only the good humor typical of people going on vacation pulled them through. The flight back was two hours late, the food was even worse (crackers, cheese and beef sticks) and the service was lousy.

Best Foreign Country — The Society of American Travel Writers took a poll this year and the members of the organization voted France one of the worst countries in the world in which to travel. Ridiculous; I found it totally satisfying with the best hotels, the best food and the best city — Paris — in the world. France is a beautiful, sensuously satisfying country that should be at the top of everyone's list.

Best Cruise — The TSS Fairwind's transatlantic cruise. The Italian crew is among the friendliest on the ocean, the Italian food is wonderful, the entertainment is adequate and the cabins are thoughtfully planned.

Worst Cruise — The sail from St. Thomas to Tortola in the British Virgin Islands. It was rough and everyone on our 41-foot sailboat threw up.

Japan planned second Pearl Harbor attack, short periscopes hampered its submarines

WASHINGTON (WP) — Did the Japanese plan a second attack on Pearl Harbor on New Year's, right after their first attack on Dec. 7, 1941?

Japanese documents captured by the United States at the end of World War II and just turned over to the National Security Agency strongly suggest a second attack was planned. The documents indicate that a Japanese submarine force planned to attack the ships still at anchor in Pearl Harbor on the night of New Year's eve, a little more than three weeks after the first Pearl Harbor attack devastated the U.S. Pacific Fleet.

One document is a cable dated Dec. 27, 1941, to commanders of Japanese submarines at sea in the Pacific giving them the number and size of U.S. navy ships then at anchor in Pearl Harbor. Others are cables sent Dec. 26 and Dec. 29 by the commander of Japan's first submarine force, directing three of Japan's largest submarines to rendezvous off the east and west coasts of the main Hawaiian island of Oahu and attack American ships two days later, which would have been New Year's eve.

"In the attack on strategic point (Pearl Harbor) of 31 December," one cable reads, "all ships will carry it out as quickly as possible after 2100 and establish lines of patrol around Hawaii."

The other cable reads: "The time (for attack) is fixed as twilight and night of 31 December. Targets for attack are ships, harbor and bay installations."

Nowhere among subsequent cables is there any indication why the attack was not carried out nor why Japanese submarines never attacked American ships coming in and out of Pearl Harbor in the early months of the Pacific war.

Naval historians have long wondered why the Japanese did not send their submarines to the environs of Hawaii to attack American shipping. There was not a single Japanese submarine attack reported on any U.S. ship entering and leaving Pearl Harbor in the weeks and months following the Dec. 7 attack.

The cables turned over to the archives reveal that at least five of Japan's largest submarines were dispatched to the west coast of the United States in December 1941 and January 1942. The cables direct the submarines to attack American shipping and to surface at night to shell Newport Beach and Long Beach in southern California and Morro Bay, Monterey and Eureka in northern California coast by a surfaced Japanese submarine. Early in 1942, a Japanese submarine surfaced at night off the coast of Santa Barbara and fired half a dozen shells at the southern California city.

While the cables give no explanation the submarine attack was not carried out at Pearl Harbor, they explain why Japanese submarines did not attack more west coast cities. Cables to Tokyo Naval Headquarters from the submarine commanders reveal that they had trouble navigating in the cold, swift Pacific Ocean currents off the U.S. west coast.

The cables also reveal that the Japanese submarines were equipped with periscopes that could only rise about 20 feet above their conning towers.

LUCRATIVE MARKET: Deer farmers in New Zealand have recently recognized the value of venison and its by-products and begun to raise deer. Previously the deer were slaughtered as destructive.

Iglesias' family offers ransom

MADRID, Jan. 4. (AFP) — The family of international singing star Julio Iglesias said Monday it is ready to pay a ransom to the kidnappers of his father, even if this goes against police advice.

The singer's brother Carlos, son of Dr. Julio Iglesias, 66, who disappeared on Dec. 29, said here in an interview on French radio that the family was ready to accept ransom terms but: "We want first to be sure that our father is in good health."

Dr. Iglesias suffers from "inadequate blood circulation in the brain and needs appropriate treatment." Carlos Iglesias had said Sunday in a broadcast appeal here for the kidnappers to contact the family. Police had advised the family against any contacts with the news media.

Asked by the French radio station RTL if police would authorize the payment of a ransom, Carlos Iglesias said: "I do not know, but it's obvious that we're the ones who will decide, not the police."

Iglesias also said he wished to call the incident a "disappearance," rather than a "kidnapping." "For the moment, the only thing that I can say is that since Tuesday we do not know where my father is," he said.

Police said Monday that the kidnappers might still wait several days for news interest in the affair to die down before contacting the family. The family has been cooperating closely with police, who had even moved into the missing gynecologist's flat here.

The presence of police might have frightened the kidnappers out of contacting the family, some observers said. The two Latin American suspects in the case seem to have vanished without a trace. Police were reported Monday to be investigating the buyer of a German-made TV set offered by the kidnappers to Dr. Iglesias before he was abducted.

Carlos Iglesias said in his appeal Sunday: "In view of our situation of anxiety, desperation and powerlessness, in the name of the family, I beg the people holding my father to contact us by any means whatsoever."

His comment on his father's health prompted speculation that the abducted doctor might have died from lack of treatment, which would explain why a ransom demand had not been made.

Singer Julio Iglesias lives in Miami, Florida, and is said to be one of the wealthiest performers in history because he performs in English and French as well as Spanish and has admirers in many countries. His brother said: "Julio is very sensitive and is in pain. The whole family is living through moments of indescribable despair."

FBI probing 1,400 officials

NEW YORK, Jan. 4. (AP) — The FBI has 1,400 public officials under investigation for possible corruption, bureau Director William H. Webster said Sunday.

Webster, interviewed on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," said those under investigation included appointed and elected officials on all levels of government — local, state and federal. He said they were being investigated because they were believed "to be utilizing their offices for corrupt purposes."

In Oklahoma alone, Webster said, 135 persons have been convicted or pleaded guilty "in a statewide pervasive practice at the local level of county commissioners accepting bribes or kickbacks."

He said the FBI began such investigations because in many cases, the people responsible for prosecuting officials were there "at the suggestion or through the efforts of the people under investigation. It makes it very difficult for them to do that job."

Also during the program, Webster was asked how many Soviet KGB agents are operating in the United States.

"That's a classified figure, but if you take 35 percent of all diplomats in this country, you'd not be far off," he said, estimating that there are others who are not diplomats, "illegals" who are in the United States under other cover.

He said all the Soviet bloc countries also were "busily engaged through their intelligence sources in technology transfer efforts." Asked if there was any hard evidence that a Libyan "hit team" was in the United States to assassinate President Ronald Reagan, he said, "we've never confirmed that."

Disgraced ex-minister reappears in Peking

PEKING, Jan. 4. (R) — Former Chinese Foreign Minister Qiao Guanhua, disgraced after the fall of the Maoist "Gang of Four" in 1976, has reappeared in public for the first time in five years at a performance of Bizet's opera Carmen.

Witnesses said Monday that Qiao, 73, and his wife Zhang Hanzhi, former director of the Foreign Ministry's Asian affairs department attended the first night of a Peking production of the opera last Saturday.

Qiao's downfall in late 1976 was a major surprise as he was generally identified with the moderate faction and was a leading exponent of the late Chou En Lai's outward-looking foreign policy. The reasons for his sacking have not been publicly disclosed, but privately Chinese officials have said Qiao had been criticized for alleged connections with the purged "gang" led by Mao Tse-tung's widow, Jiang Qing.

SAFETY ALARM: Recommended for firemen, sewer workers and others who enter dangerous environments, this 'Life Rescue SOS 1000' sends out a 112 db beeping sound when the wearer falls down on the job — or off it, for that matter. The alarm is triggered by an internal mercury position switch and may also be set off manually by pulling a pin. It is waterproof and draws power from two batteries.

Federal support to end U.S. science faces austerity

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP) — Science, although still a cornerstone of future U.S. growth and prosperity, is facing a period of austerity and redirection as decades of increasing support come to an end, say policymakers.

Experts from government, academic and private organizations told thousands of somber scientists on Sunday that the rapid growth enjoyed by science in the United States since World War II is over.

The nation's economic difficulties, and the Reagan administration's approaches to solving them, mean less federal support of many scientific activities.

And this will force the government, and scientists themselves, to make some hard and possibly unpopular choices on how to spend the money that remains, the experts said.

Speaking at the opening of the week-long annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS), science policy specialists hammered at the themes of streamlining research and developing new priorities.

"We must now face up to the difficult choices because we know federal expenditures for science cannot and will not continue to grow in the way they have in the previous three decades," said George Keyworth, science adviser to President Ronald Reagan.

Keyworth defended the administration's cuts in basic research programs as necessary, and told the country's largest gathering of scientists that the reductions may be beneficial in the long run.

"I believe the discipline of making such hard choices will ultimately benefit science," he said.

Wanted to keep the group going Ex-Beatle refutes charges

LONDON, Jan. 4. (AP) — Paul McCartney, blamed by his critics for breaking up the Beatles 11 years ago, refutes the charge and says that of all the Beatles he wanted most to keep the group going.

"I certainly wasn't responsible for splitting up the Beatles as some people suggest," the 39-year-old superstar said in an interview with The Times of London Monday.

"In fact, I was the last one to come to that view. I'd wanted us to tour, to bring us closer together again."

But when the split came, said McCartney, it was like getting a divorce. "You just don't want to know about your ex-wife or husband. After all the hitches, you feel the desire for a complete break."

McCartney, who with the late John Lennon wrote most of the Beatles' music, also refutes the popular view that he and Lennon disliked one another, although he admits that Lennon's public criticisms of him in the early 1970s shocked and hurt and inspired him to prove he could be a success in his own right without the other three Beatles — Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr.

He rarely answered Lennon's challenges, he said, because he had little chance of matching his former writing partner's renowned wit. "It all gets absorbed into the myth, your image builds up, it gets into plays and books and it becomes the truth," said McCartney, "except that it wasn't."

Lennon, who was shot to death outside his apartment in New York city on Dec. 8, 1980, actually liked him, said McCartney.

"From a purely selfish point of view," he said, "if I could get John Lennon back, I'd ask him to undo this legacy he's left me. I'd ask him to tell everyone what he told (his Japanese wife) Yoko Ono in the privacy of his own room. Yoko and I talk on the phone a lot nowadays, since his death, and what she says just as the occasional pruning of a tree can promote, rather than retard, its health," he said.

Keyworth told the scientists that rather than fighting the reductions they should help the government in selecting the most promising research to finance and the less productive areas to cut.

"The scientific and technological community must learn to participate in this assessment by playing a more forceful and critical role," he said.

If not, he said, others without this scientific background will make these decisions and perhaps not as well.

An assessment of the Reagan administration budget cuts by the AAAS staff said the government has appropriated about $40 billion for research and development in fiscal 1982.

This represents a decline in science appropriations of 5 percent after adjustments for inflation and reverses a long trend of steady increases, the study said. Only defense-related research and development showed increases in spending, it added.

Dr. Alvin Trivelpiece of the Department of Energy said there still is a priority for a balanced energy and particle physics research but that "growth must be limited for some years to come."

Trivelpiece said science has a natural growth factor built into it that must be contained. "We simply will not be able to support every interesting avenue opened by science," he said. "We can no longer follow each new lead and must be more selective."

tells me something very important: John still liked me, after all."

McCartney denies that he Beatles' former manager, Brian Epstein, might have been able to patch up the group's differences had he not committed suicide in 1967.

"Brian's reign was ending," said McCartney. "To begin with, we needed the man in the Ford Zodiac to get us recording contracts and make sure we wore the right clothes. But by 1967, a lot of things were escaping his grasp."

In the interview, McCartney also says his marriage with former photographer Linda Eastman in 1969 has been misunderstood, particularly in Britain.

Linda, little known before the marriage, has since become an integral part of McCartney's live performances and recordings and was personally taught by her husband to become a musician.

The public, McCartney says, would have preferred him to marry actress Jane Asher, with whom he had a long and much-publicized romance in the 1960s. "The point about Linda is that I love her and I didn't love Jane Asher," he said.

Sweden raps S. Africa

SALISBURY, Jan. 4. (AFP) — Visiting Swedish Foreign Minister Ola Ullsten Monday criticized South Africa for trying to create problems for Zimbabwe. Ullsten, who arrived here Sunday for a four-day visit, said he regretted that "South Africa is so eager to pursue its policy of destabilization against countries in this region."

He said that South Africa had not learned from the example of Zimbabwe which had progressed to majority rule. "Instead they (the South Africans) are just putting obstacles in the path of this country, a path which is already difficult to walk," Ullsten said.

Senegambia united but economic ills remain

DAKAR, Jan. 4. (AFP) — Senegal and Gambia began the New Year as a new entity with a new political setup but with the same old economic headaches. At midnight on Jan. 1, a treaty setting up the confederacy of Senegambia came into force.

The union between the tiny former British colony of Gambia of 600,000 persons and the former French colony of Senegal with some 5.5 million persons had long been recommended, including United Nations officials.

It was not until Senegalese troops had to be rushed into Gambia to put down a bloody attempted coup on July 30 that Gambia finally brushed aside its final reservations about confederation — it had feared that it would be swamped by its far larger neighbor — and entered into negotiations to set up the union. More than 1,000 persons were reported killed in the Marxist-Leninist coup and its aftermath.

The result was a confederation, with the Senegalese head of state Abdou Diouf as president and Gambian chief Sir Dawda Jawara as vice president. Diouf had become the leader of Senegal on Jan. 1, 1981 when Leopold Senghor created history as being the first elected head of a government in post-colonial Africa to step aside voluntarily.

Under the confederation arrangement, Gambia will be able to remain in the Commonwealth. But Senegambia is to conclude joint customs and monetary arrangements, coordinate policies in foreign affairs and communications, and integrate their defense and security forces.

Each state is to preserve its own sovereignty, and Gambia is to try to cease being a West African sanctuary for contraband goods. The new Senegalese president, in attempt to strengthen his country's economy, canceled most debts incurred by peasants and raised the price paid to producers.

Senegal's agricultural output was aided by the heaviest rainfall in years last year, but the country was confronted with a poor world market for its groundnuts, one of its major agricultural products. The situation threatens to compromise once again Senegal's economic plan of recovery, observers have said. The plan was postponed in 1980 due to a disastrous harvest.

The Gambian economy is also heavily dependant on groundnuts and both countries, which depend on imported oil, face rising fuel bills.

The fragility of the economic situation is said by observers to be among the main sources of potential political difficulties for President Diouf. This is one reason why the African Groundnut Council recently tried to find new ways of bolstering international trade in a bid to better protect African nations from the vagaries of unstable markets, often ruled by Europe and America.

Aborigines seek Australian ban

DARWIN, Australia, Jan. 4. (R) — Aborigines in northern Australia have asked the government to close to outsiders coastal waters bordering tribal zones. Officials said Monday. Les Penhall, a senior officer in the Department of the Chief Minister of the Northern Territory, said aboriginal land councils had made claims on areas of sea around several islands and along a 100 km stretch of coast bordering the Arnhem land aboriginal reserve.

The aborigines asserted that areas of sea, reefs, partially submerged rocks, and islands contained sacred sites and should be barred to outsiders. But they also said fish stocks had been depleted by non-aboriginal fishermen. Aborigines, granted rights several times over tracts of land in the northern territory, had never before claimed undersea areas, Penhall said.

If their claims are successful, only outsiders issued with permits would be admitted to the areas. Penhall said the claims were likely to run into stiff opposition. Two of the islands involved, Bathurst, and Melville, were close to Darwin and popular fishing areas for city dwellers.

BRIEFS

JAKARTA, (R) — A seaside outing to see "a big strange fish" ended in disaster when at least 24 persons drowned after a pleasure boat capsized and sank, officials said Monday. Thirteen survivors were rescued after the boat went down off the coast of Probolinggo, about 450 miles east of here, and a search is going on for about 25 others. The boat capsized when the passengers all rushed to one side to see the fish, a police spokesman said.

RICHMOND, Virginia, (R) — Eight persons were killed when a small plane crashed and burned while trying to land in rain near here Sunday night, police said. Eight bodies were recovered from the twin-engine Cessna, which crashed near a main road after making one unsuccessful attempt to land. Among the victims were the pilot, his wife, and son who were returning from a holiday.

PEKING, (AFP) — Several wild camels, one of the world's disappearing species, were discovered last year in north and northwest China, close to the famous Buddhist grottoes at Dunhuang. New China News Agency reported Monday. The wild camels were taller, livelier, ran faster and had smaller bumps than their domestic cousins, the agency said. They have a short, thick pale yellow coat. Wild camels exist mainly in northwest China and in Mongolia.

SEOUL, (R) — Nine miners were killed Sunday night by a gas explosion at a coal pit in Taebak city, about 170 kms southeast of Seoul, police said. Poisonous fumes filled the shaft, preventing a speedy rescue operation officials said. The cause of the blast was being investigated.

America hopes efforts on Namibia may succeed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP) — In an era of heightening global tensions, one bright spot for the administration of President Ronald Reagan is the prospect that a painstaking U.S.-led effort to promote peace and stability in Southern Africa finally may bear fruit in 1982.

If all goes well, American officials now can foresee an end to long years of warfare and colonial rule in the area, an easing of racial tensions and the removal of Southern Africa from the arena of East-West competition.

The process has involved an extraordinary complex diplomatic effort to bring about black majority rule and independence in the South African-controlled territory of Namibia and a related effort to induce the withdrawal of Cuban troops from Angola, Namibia's northern neighbor.

Participating in the effort have been the United Nations, the United States and four allied countries and a host of African nations with a stake in the outcome.

But the main actors have been South Africa and the United States, specifically President Reagan's assistant secretary of state for African affairs, Chester Crocker.

South Africa continues to administer Namibia, also known as Southwest Africa, in defiance of U.N. resolutions. The counterinsurgency war South Africa has been waging against black nationalist Namibian guerrillas has spilled over into Angola, the principal base of operations for the insurgents.

Angola says the 15,000 to 20,000 Cuban troops deployed there are needed to help protect the country against South African raids. Secretary of State Alexander Haig sees the Cuban presence as an indirect bid by the Soviet Union for influence in the area.

Against that background, the United States has been attempting to persuade South Africa to relinquish control over Namibia through a process that will ensure the interests of the territory's white minority are protected and guarantee free and fair elections leading to independence.

As current U.S. officials see it, the efforts of former President Jimmy Carter's administration to achieve the same goal failed because of South African suspicions about American impartiality. With a friendlier administration in Washington, the South Africans have seemed more flexible, seeming to sense that the terms now being offered are as reasonable as they are likely to get. Angola, meanwhile, also is believed to be eager for a Namibia settlement. Because of the Cuban troop presence there, the United States has refused to establish diplomatic relations with Angola.

The combination of the war and restrictions on economic ties to the West has contributed to mounting economic problems in Angola, according to administration officials who insisted that their names not be used. Said one official, "the only way they can get their act together economically is by a progressive opening to the West, not just us, but including us."

South African fears about Namibian independence have been eased by U.S.-sponsored modifications of the U.N. resolution which has served as the basis for a settlement.

The South Africans have refused to go along with any settlement that would automatically deliver political control of Namibia to the Southwest Africa People's Organization (SWAPO), the black nationalist guerrilla group which Pretoria regards as Marxist-dominated.

The South African concerns have been placated by Western proposals for a series of constitutional principles which, in effect, would prevent SWAPO from establishing a one-party Socialist state after independence and would guarantee freedom of speech, of the press and of assembly and the right of due process.

Administration officials say they hope final agreement by all parties on constitutional principles can be reached this month. Afterward, the main task will be to complete arrangements for U.N.-supervised elections of a constitution-writing constituent assembly.

Under some scenarios, Namibian independence could be achieved late this year, but officials acknowledge it could drag on until 1983.

Throughout the past year, the administration's main objective has been to give the South Africans enough confidence to proceed toward a settlement. The evidence of new U.S. friendship toward South Africa has been condemned by the Organization of African Unity, but Reagan administration officials believe the benefits of the policy outweigh the costs.

Prisoners to be exchanged Viets claim 'China islands'

BANGKOK, Jan. 4. (AFP) Vietnam Monday reiterated a claim to the Paracel and Spratly islands in the South China Sea, a major bone of contention between China and Vietnam. The Paracels have been under Chinese military occupation since 1974, while Vietnam and the Philippines each has a share of the Spratlys.

After a brief border war in early 1979, China and Vietnam opened talks on the dispute, but these were broken off a year ago after 15 fruitless sessions.

The Vietnam News Agency (VNA), monitored here Monday, began a six-article series on the issue with the statement that "Vietnam's sovereignty over these islands" can be shown by various historic texts and documents in Hanoi, Ho Chi Minh City, and in libraries in Paris, Tokyo, London, Washington and Peking.

When it occupied the Paracels (Called the Xisha islands by the Chinese), China "orchestrated a propaganda campaign to justify itself, and interpreted the texts in its own way, falsifying documents and even referring to alleged archaeological research in the Xishas" to back up its claims, VNA said. The agency added that "for more than two centuries Western navigators and missionaries" had put the islands on maps of Vietnam, and both the islands were administratively attached to Vietnam during the French rule in Indochina.

In another development, China and Vietnam will exchange prisoners on Jan. 15 prior to the Lunar New Year. New China News Agency reported in Peking Monday. China plans to free seven prisoners and four Vietnamese fishermen in response to a Vietnamese proposal a few days ago to release 11 Chinese, the agency said.

The deputy director of the Asian department at the Chinese Foreign Ministry, Zhang Dewei, visited the Vietnamese Embassy in Peking Monday regarding the matter. But Zhang described as "hypocritical" a Vietnamese proposal for a border truce marking the Lunar New Year, Jan. 25, the agency said.

The truce proposal was "aimed at confounding world opinion and deceiving the Vietnamese people so as to cover up its criminal anti-China acts," Zhang said.

PIW sees fall in demand for oil

LONDON, Jan. 4 (R) — OPEC will find it difficult if not impossible to raise its oil output this year much above 1981's 10-year low of around 23 million barrels daily, The Petroleum Intelligence Weekly (PIW) said Monday.

The New York oil industry newsletter, which is also distributed in London, said government and industry analysts forecast that oil demand would continue falling in 1982 while companies would be tempted to reduce surplus stocks.

Supplies to the non-Communist world from outside OPEC (the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) were also increasing and were expected to exceed OPEC output for the first time in about 20 years.

Economic recession, energy conservation and greater use of coal, gas, and nuclear power have been responsible for the fall in demand for OPEC oil to the present level of 23 million barrels daily from a 1979 peak of nearly 31 million, according to market experts. OPEC has been forced to cut some prices and freeze its base rate because of the slump in demand.

Indonesia hikes domestic rates for petroleum

JAKARTA, Jan. 4 (R) — Indonesia slashed domestic fuel subsidies Monday and increased petrol and oil prices by an average of 60 percent.

The move, announced by Mining and Energy Minister Dr. Subroto Sunday comes four months before a general election and is seen as a political gamble by the ruling Golkar Party. President Suharto is due Tuesday to unveil his budget for the 1982-83 fiscal year, which runs from April to March.

Observers predict a belt-tightening package reflecting falling balance of payments surpluses and the effect of the world recession on oil exports and the economy. Subsidies have kept the cost of petrol, diesel and kerosene cooking fuel in Indonesia well below world levels.

Urged by economic advisers, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank, Indonesian officials have been saying privately for months that the subsidy would have to be reduced. But few observers expected such a politically-sensitive move, which some predict could lead to popular discontent, before the May 4 general elections.

Robots run $36m Japanese factory

OSHINO, Japan, Jan. 4 (R) — At eight o'clock in the morning, the nightshift of the Fujitsu Fanuc Factory prepares to leave for home after working about 15 hours producing precision-machined parts and equipment.

The workforce consists of just one man — the lone supervisor of Japan's first fully automated factory. Throughout the night, on a vast factory floor under the eerie glow of neon lamps, lines of machine tools and robots work steadily hour after hour, carrying out instructions fed to them from the company computer miles away on the outskirts of Tokyo.

The computer decides what to produce according to orders received. The robots are fed constantly with raw material by driverless trucks running from an automatic warehouse across roads with electric guide wires under the surface. And the final product of all this activity — more robots and computer-controlled machine tools.

The factory cost $36.36 million to build a year ago and its managing director, Hiromichi Shichida, says it has already paid for itself. It is capable of turning out 100 robots and 150 machine tools a month and total monthly sales have been running at $6.82 million.

During the day, there are 100 Japanese in the plant, 60 of them assembling machined parts into finished products and then testing them. The rest on the workforce consists of 10 staff and 30 engineers — human minders preparing machines for the next night shift and re-setting computer programs.

But some of the human's days are numbered. The next development will be to reduce the workforce devoted to final assembly. Company officials are drawing up plans for the replacement of men by robots which will be able to recognize colors and so assemble new robots.

Day workers at the Oshino factory, which lies in a quiet wood close to the slopes of Mount Fuji, work five days a week from 8.40 in the morning until 5.25 in the afternoon with a 45 minute mid-day break. The robots work non-stop.

The nucleus of the factory is the machine cell. This consists of a robot, a computer-controlled machine tool and a monitor. Between them they keep watch on the machining and the flow of electricity through the cell, ready to stop it dead if a fault occurs on the factory floor.

A current company motto declares "aim for two", a reference to a campaign to have only two breakdowns in 100 months of operation. The company is unhappy with its present record of three breakdowns in 100 months. All computer-planned operations are monitored by television cameras and electrical displays in the control room at the side of the factory.

The automatic warehouse feeds the unmanned carrier which then feeds a conveyor belt taking raw parts to the robot, which places them into the machine tool.

After machining, the finished product is ejected and returned to the warehouse and the whole process starts again. If something goes wrong during the night, an individual process automatically closes down until the arrival of the morning shift. But this has only happened once.

Shichida said one worker in a conventional factory can be expected to keep an eye on two machines. During the day operation at Oshino one worker after three years training can be overseeing as many as 10. "There is more automation here therefore a worker has to be more careful, so, for greater safety, fences and gates surround the machines which are working, triggered to stop operations if anyone enters the working area," he said.

Meanwhile, a newspaper survey showed Monday nearly 70 percent of Japanese fear an increasing use of industrial robots will lead to higher unemployment.

The Mainichi Shimbun interviewed 3,000 persons aged over 20 and found 67 percent thought robots and office automation would lead to increased unemployment. The survey showed 23 percent expected to see no change but 50 percent felt the introduction of robots was desirable while 44 percent saw their arrival as undesirable.

U.K. miners to vote on strike Jan. 14

LONDON, Jan. 4 (R) — The leadership of Britain's 250,000 miners Monday called on them to authorize a possible strike, threatening a conflict sure to cause unease in Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government.

A showdown with miners over a hefty pay claim would test Mrs. Thatcher's nerve and her resolve to keep the lid on wages just when she feels she is starting to win the battle against inflation. Mrs. Thatcher and her cabinet will be mindful that a previous strike by miners was largely responsible for bringing down the Conservative government of Prime Minister Edward Heath in 1974.

The new miners' leader, left-wing militant Arthur Scargill, president-elect of the National Union of Mineworkers (NUM), has already said the pay dispute is shaping into a repeat of 1974. The NUM leadership, in a special issue of the union news paper distributed to all members Monday urged them to authorize a strike "if necessary" in secret ballots Jan. 14 and 15.

The NUM negotiators need 55 percent approval but are looking for a bigger mandate in the expectation that the mere threat of a strike will be enough to force the nationalized coal industry to come up with more money.

There is no certainty the miners will go along with the NUM leaders. They have on past occasions voted against strikes recommended by the leadership. But the overwhelming election of Scargill, known as "King Arthur" to his Yorkshire colleagues, suggests some militancy among the members and the expectation he will take a tough stand to get them a better deal.

The union is demanding a pay rise of 23.7 percent — almost six times the government's recommended four percent guideline — to lift the minimum weekly pay to 100 sterling ($185). The NUM bargaining committee has already rejected the latest 9.3 percent offer from the state-run National Coal Board. If the miners authorize a strike, Mrs. Thatcher is certain to come under pressure from within her party to find more money.

London stock market

LONDON Jan. 4 (R) — Equities eased in quiet trading while government bonds were little changed on balance, dealers said. At 1500 hours, the Financial Times index was down 7.8 at 522.6.

The strength of sterling showed an initial higher trend in both sectors but profit taking was soon in evidence after the rises posted last week, they added. Among the leaders, GEC and Plessey fell 1810 and 8p respectively.

U.S. and Canadian shares also finished lower, while gold drifted with the bullion price.

Oils were weak from the outset and BP, Shell, Strammar and Lasso ended with falls of between 7p and 10p. Barclays was unchanged on balance at 453 but other banks were lower. Bank of Scotland continued to react to recent sharp gains, falling 5p to 512.

Tubes, firm last week on the closure of subsidiary British Aluminium's Invergordon Smelter factory, fell 8p to 122. Grand Met, Hawker Siddeley and ICI were 4p to 6p lower while ICL traded 9p below Friday's close at 34 ex rights. Government bonds ended little change from pre-holiday levels after opening round 1/4 point higher.

Dollar opens on weak note

By J.H. Hammond

JEDDAH, Jan. 4 — The American dollar opened weak on the first full working day after the holidays. The immediate impact seemed to have been easing of dollar interest rates by as much as 1/4 percent in some tenors although the falls averaged between 1/8 and 3/16 percent. Some easing of the international tensions over Poland also helped the European currencies, particularly the German mark, to cover some lost ground. In the local markets, rial deposit rates fluctuated widely especially in the shorter tenors and closed weaker by the end of the trading day. In London and Zurich, gold wavered at the $399-400 per ounce levels but did not break through this barrier.

The fall of the American currency in the London markets took some operators by surprise since they had been expecting the markets to slowly get back into "operating gear" as well as not moving too fast out of line without seeing how the American markets would open. Some aggressive position taken by European dealers helped to push up the continental currencies' value against the dollar and the American currency weakened further when Eurodollar interest rates fell back by midday.

One month Eurodollar deposit rates now stand at levels of 12 1/2-13 1/2-15 1/2 percent having dropped back from 13 1/2-15 1/2-16 1/2 percent earlier in the day. Longer term deposits remain firmer though, with the one year dollar deposit rate quoted at 14 7/16-14 9/16 percent levels although there was a drop of 1/16 percent later on in the day. Once again, money market dealers mainly attributed this to some squaring operations by dealers who had been "long" on dollars before the holidays.

In the exchange markets, the German mark reached 2.290 levels before averaging ing out at 2.2320 levels by close of business. This is a 200 point improvement for the mark and reflects renewed optimism that a political solution can be found to Poland's problems. The British pound continued its upward boost to reach 1.9350 at one stage in London before some profit taking pushed it down to 1.9320 levels. High U.K. interest rates were still the main attraction here. The Swiss franc improved its position to 1.7790 while the yen gained some 200 points to trade at 217.70 levels from previously quoted prices of 219.80. Even the volatile French franc picked up lost ground to trade at 5.6580 levels from previous levels of 5.705.69.

The European uncertainties over the dollar reflected themselves in the local markets where rial rates came down further. One month JIBOR bid-offer rates opened at 8 1/4-8 3/4 percent but by midday had eased to 8-8 1/4 percent. The week fixed was still quoted at 6 1/4-7 1/4 percent levels — with no change over Sunday prices — while the medium term tenors came off by about 1/2 to 3/4 percent. This makes the three month tenor stand at 10-10 1/2 percent compared with 10 1/4-10 3/4 percent on Sunday. As was the case with the dollar, long term rial rates were relatively stable, with one year fixed deposit averaging at 12 1/4-12 3/4 percent levels. Dealing was extremely tight however, in the money markets and this was also the case in the exchange markets. Spot rial/dollar rates opened at a fairly optimistic level of 3.4200-10 but quickly fell back to 3.4195-05 as the dollar weakened in Europe.

Closing gold prices (in U.S. dollars per troy ounce):
London 395.50
Paris 404.00
Frankfurt 400.99
Zurich 393.50
Hong Kong 403.68

Greece won't take over industries

ATHENS, Jan. 4 (Agencies) — Premier Andreas Papandreu Sunday announced widespread economic measures designed to help the ailing Greek economy confront growing recession and also indicated that his Socialist government did not intend to proceed with the nationalization of major private industries.

He said that key industries not already under state control would be assisted both economically and managementwise in order to conform with his Socialist government policy. One of the ways, Papandreu added, was the foundation of supervisory committees consisting of workers, local authorities, the state and their company boards, which will guide the troubled industries.

UAE oil output hits 1.4m bpd

ABU DHABI, Jan. 4 (AP) — The United Arab Emirates (UAE) produced crude oil at a daily average rate of 1.4 million barrels during 1981, a petroleum ministry report stated Monday.

Of the total, the Emirate of Abu Dhabi alone produced oil at an average rate of 1,060 million barrels a day, it said. The report showed that the 1981 production total was 15 percent below the 1980 rate.

Abu Dhabi's exports of crude oil during the first nine months of 1981 amounted to 304.92 million barrels, or 1.114 million barrels a day, according to the report. Japan topped the list of crude oil importers from Abu Dhabi during 1981 with a total of 17 million barrels, with France coming second with 34 million barrels.

The United States imported 25 million barrels from Abu Dhabi during the year, West Germany 23 million barrels, the Netherlands 11 million, and South Korea 985,000 barrels, the report added. It said that a total of 39 countries import crude oil from Abu Dhabi, but it gave no breakdown of the whole list.

Talks today

World Bank may raise fees on loans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Directors of the World Bank will vote at a closed meeting Tuesday on a recommendation by A.W. Clausen, its American president, for increases in the fees it charges to poor countries for loans to raise their living standards.

The 21 directors, representing 145 member governments, are expected to agree with no more than minor changes. Thomas Dawson, deputy assistant secretary of the treasury for developing countries, will represent the United States. The administration of U.S. President Ronald Reagan has delayed naming a director since its first choice, Wilson Smith, died in an accident last year.

Officials who asked not to be named said future loans made for as long as 50 years to the poorest countries will have to pay an annual charge of 1 percent, instead of the present 0.75 percent. The loans are used for such purposes as building roads and dams, improving schools and farming. Though the change seems small it could raise the total cost of a $100 million loan by a million dollars or so over its life — an important sum to a poor country.

No other interest is paid on such loans, which are granted by the bank's International Development Association. Clausen has suggested reducing the maximum period to 45 years and to review them from time to time to see if they can be repaid even faster. The

India gets bulk of EEC aid

BRUSSELS, Jan. 4 (AFP) — The European Economic Community is to give aid worth more than $70 million to India and developing countries in south America and southeast Asia, sources close to the European Commission said here Monday.

The largest slice of the aid will go to India, which is to get about $47 million for the importation of fertilisers and the control of erosion. About $14 million will go to Association of South-East Asian Nations (ASEAN) countries — Indonesia, Malaysia, Philippines, Singapore and Thailand — for various development projects.

The bidding:
 North East South West
 1♣ Pass 1♥ Pass
 2♣ Pass 3NT

Opening lead - jack of spades.

Let's say you're West and you only dummy's hand and your own. Declarer wins your spade lead with the king, East playing the deuce, and returns a club, which you win with the king. What would you play now? Actually, there's only one right play - the ten of diamonds! If you lead it, South goes down; if you don't, South makes the contract.

If declarer goes up with the ace, you score three diamond tricks and the A-K of clubs. If declarer covers the ten with the jack, East wins with the king and returns the seven, allowing you to force out the ace. If declarer ducks the ten, so does East, and a low diamond continuation establishes the two additional diamond tricks you need to set the contract.

Note that if you lead the six of diamonds at trick three, South plays low from dummy and makes four notrump.

How can you be expected to know that leading the ten of diamonds is the right play? Well, look at it this way. After studying dummy, you can count eight tricks for declarer - three spades, a diamond and four clubs - and, considering the bidding, he is sure to have a ninth trick somewhere in his hand - if you simply stand pat.

If you make the "safe" lead of the ten of spades, you will unintentionally, but surely, hand South the contract! You must attack to succeed, and declarer's only possible soft spot is diamonds. You therefore exploit this possibility, hoping to find partner with the king.

For East to have the king of diamonds is by no means impossible. That's why you attack diamonds - being careful, of course, to lead the ten in case South has the nine.

60 officials surrender

Ex-president of Ghana arrested

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast, Jan. 4 (Agencies) — Former Ghanaian President Hilla Limann, ousted in a military coup on New Year's Eve, was arrested Monday at a police road block outside the capital of Accra, Accra radio reported. The radio, monitored here, said Limann was being brought back to the capital under guard after being stopped near the town of Koforidua, 65 kms north of the capital.

The official spokesman had refused to say where Limann, a diplomat-turned-politician, was being held but one possibility had it that he was under arrest at "The Castle," as the state house in Accra is known.

It was not immediately clear how the ousted president had come to be traveling along the road leading north from the coastal capital into the country's interior. An official spokesman in Accra Sunday said Limann was "safe". Flight Lt. Jerry Rawlings, who heads the new ruling Provisional National Defense Council, has described the Limann civilian administration as the most disgraceful in Ghana's history.

The 34-year-old Air Force officer, son of a Scottish policeman and a Ghanaian mother, handed power to the Limann administration after a previous coup in 1979. The new military rulers called on ousted leaders Sunday to surrender or be hunted down.

Accra radio, monitored in Abidjan, said that 60 former cabinet ministers and officials of the ousted civilian administration, including members of the dismissed parliament and banned political parties, had placed themselves under police protection "as requested."

They included former Foreign Minister Isaac Chirebuah and Finance Minister

George Benneh, who was in charge of land and fuel affairs under Rawlings and later finance and economy minister in Limann's government.

In a separate development apparently aimed at giving a general feeling of normalization four days after the coup, the radio announced that the night curfew was being cut by three hours and would run from 8 p.m. to 5 a.m.

Informal sources reached in Accra said the capital was calm with no looting or shooting. Radio Accra earlier said the ruling council had frozen the assets of ex-President Limann, his ministers, members of parliament and officials of the former ruling People's National Party and their families.

Rawlings has promised a "holy war" against corruption and charged the previous government with denying basic human rights during its two-year rule. His coup appeared a carbon copy of 1979 when he also declared war against corruption, froze assets and ordered officials to report to police.

The only officials so far named in his administration are Brig. Gen. Nunoo Mensah, who was made army chief of staff, and Brig. Gen. Arnold Quainoo, made army commander. Both were retired by Limann when he took over in 1979.

Rawlings and the ruling PNDC have banned political parties, suspended the constitution and abolished parliament. Rawlings said the action was "a revolution, not a coup," and was intended to root out corruption that has been plaguing the country for more than 10 years.

Meanwhile, the radio reminded all resident non-Ghanaians that the country's laws reserve certain sectors of the economy like retail trade and the purchase and export of cocoa, coffee, peanuts, cola nuts and groundnuts for Ghanaian citizens only.

These laws were passed in 1969 under the civilian administration of Dr. Kofi Busia in an attempt to increase job opportunities for Ghanaians. A large number of West African aliens from neighboring countries was subsequently expelled.

A military spokesman has said no more than 10 persons died during last Thursday's coup, but it is not clear whether they were soldiers or civilians.

Accra radio reported that the PNDC has asked all former members of the dissolved parliament who had obtained salary advances to refund them to the government by noon Wednesday.

The radio said the Trade Union Congress (TUC) had decided to convene a special emergency executive board meeting in Accra on Wednesday to consider appropriate steps in connection with the revolution. Representatives of councils of labor from the nine regions and all regional TUC secretaries are also to attend the meeting.

The TUC advised all workers not to panic and to resume normal work. Accra radio also reported that demonstrations of support for the PNDC continued Monday in the capital.

S. Africa raids Angola 100 times

LUANDA, Jan. 4 (AFP) — The South African Air Force carried out 100 bombing raids on Angola and more than 1,600 reconnaissance flights between January and November 1981, Angolan President Jose Eduardo Dos Santos said Monday in a message broadcast by the official ANGOP news agency.

South Africa had also prepared 67 troop operations and launched 53, mainly against the southern Angolan provinces of Cunene and Kuando Kubango, Dos Santos said.

In the biggest operation which began Aug. 23, Pretoria used more than 11,000 men, 90 helicopters and other aircraft and 106 armored vehicles, together with artillery and surface-to-surface missiles, the president added.

Brandt warns world against ignoring Cyprus issue

NICOSIA, Cyprus, Jan. 4 (AP) — West German Socialist leader Willy Brandt speaking here Monday warned the world against ignoring the problem of Cyprus, divided since the Turkish intervention in 1974.

"What I have come to realize most clearly is that if the international and European community ignore the Cyprus problem they will be acting against interests with a more general meaning," Brandt declared in an address to the Cyprus Parliament.

Brandt's address came on the tenth day of a visit to Cyprus during which he also conferred separately with Cyprus President Spyros Kyprianou and Foreign Minister Nicos Rodolakis.

Accompanied by Kyprianou, Brandt made a brief visit to the heavily fortified "green line" that splits the capital, Nicosia, and divides the government-controlled part of the island from the Turkish-occupied northern sector.

Looking through binoculars from inside a bunker, Brandt watched armed troops on the Turkish side of the line, similar in many places to the wall dividing the German capital, Berlin.

"The human and economic aspects of the Cyprus problem are anything but known, as well as they should be, everywhere... and from this viewpoint I wish to advise friends, and the governments of the states of my own world, under no circumstances to try to live ignoring the Cyprus problem," Brandt said in his address.

Shortly before he addressed the extraordinary session of parliament, held in his honor, Brandt also answered questions during a news conference.

Speaking in English to local and foreign newsmen Brandt said: "I got the impression there is a need to remind several agencies abroad, in the international community and especially in Europe, to remind these factors of their responsibility for the unsettled problem of Cyprus."

"Not only because there is this responsibility, but also because I believe it is in their own interests, of the international community and especially of the European community, to help, if they can, to get the Cyprus problem solved."

Brandt denied press reports he had come to Cyprus to act as a mediator. "I am just a friend," who is ready to help any way possible to bring about a settlement, he said.

Drawing a parallel between divided Germany and divided Cyprus, Brandt told SHOCKING: Power company workers in Long Beach, California, lower the body of a teenager who was electrocuted when he climbed a power pole to retrieve a remote-controlled model glider that became entangled in the wires Sunday. The youth remained atop the pole for 45 minutes, until power could be shut off. Efforts to revive him on the ground were unsuccessful.

Hoax suspected

Dozier in Verona, call claims

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands, Jan. 4 (AP) — An anonymous telephone caller told the Associated Press bureau here Monday that kidnapped U.S. Brig. Gen. James Dozier was being held in a cellar near his home in Verona, Italy.

A spokesman for the Amsterdam police said he was "inclined to believe the call was a hoax," adding that this was the first report of a claim in the Netherlands concerning the Dec. 17 kidnapping. The caller, who spoke accentless Dutch, did not identify himself and hung up after saying: "Dozier is being held in a cellar behind the street where he lives."

Police in Verona, Italy, who are conducting the investigation into the kidnapping, said it was impossible for them to judge whether the call was authentic. "It could be true, it could be a hoax," said an official of the anti-terrorist police who asked not to be identified. "Dozier may be held in Verona or far away. We are doing our best to find him."

Meanwhile, Judith Dozier, the wife of the kidnapped General, asked Sunday to be hypnotized to help her recall repressed memories of the night of the abduction, the Italian news agency Ansa said.

A hypnotist from the NATO base in nearby Vicenza went to Mrs. Dozier's home. Ansa said. NATO officials at Verona and Vicenza had no immediate comment on the report.

Dozier, 50, the highest ranking American at the NATO headquarters here, was kidnapped Dec. 17 by armed men posing as plumbers. Mrs. Dozier was bound, gagged and chained to a chair in her kitchen. The Red Brigades claimed responsibility for the attack but have not made demands for the general's release.

Mrs. Dozier has given police descriptions of the kidnappers but Ansa said she hopes she can give a more detailed account if she undergoes hypnosis.

The Italian Government has repeatedly said it will refuse to negotiate or offer concessions to the Red Brigades.

Some reporters suggested the reward offered by Dozier's "friends" might be considered a concession to members or sympathizers of the Red Brigades who had information about the kidnapping. An official said investigators hope it will encourage any one who, for example, rented an apartment to members of the Red Brigades to give information to police.

A Verona prosecutor, Guido Papalia, said the reward might encourage members of the Red Brigades to turn state's evidence. "The money will be given to people who collaborate," Papalia told Italian reporters. "The important thing is to have the collaboration."

Sihanouk arrives in China for talks

PEKING, Jan. 4 (AFP) — Former Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk arrived here Monday for talks with leading Chinese officials. The prince's arrival in the Chinese capital came at a time of dissension among the anti-Vietnamese Cambodian factions over proposals for a coalition to combat the Heng Samrin regime in Phnom Penh.

The Khmer Rouge have indicated opposition to an ASEAN (Association of Southeast Asian Nations) proposal that they join supporters of Prince Sihanouk and the forces of one-time Premier Ier Son Sann in a "loose coalition" which could be dissolved once general elections were called after a withdrawal of Vietnamese troops.

The ASEAN (Philippines, Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia and Thailand) nations made the proposal after talks among the three factions aimed at forming a coalition government faltered. Prince Sihanouk said recently that he hoped to meet Khieu Samphan, president and prime minister of the Khmer Rouge regime ousted from Phnom Penh in January 1979, during his stay in China.

He also said he hoped to have talks with top Chinese officials, including Chinese strongman and party Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping.

Prince Sihanouk, who spent the past six months in southern France, was greeted at the airport by Vice Premier Ji Pengfei, director of the party international liaison department, and Han Nianlong, deputy foreign minister in charge of Asian affairs.

Good Morning

By Jihad Al Khazen

A different kind of logic. Like that of the wife who tells her husband: Go buy yourself a wig. Your bald patch is showing my age!

And like those friends of the man who fears traveling by air, because of all the hijackings he hears about. They tell him that air travel is statistically still by far the safest form of travel. That he should go to it without worry, the chance of a mishap being no more than one in a million.

The man is not convinced so he keeps complaining. They then present him with the perfect solution. Go into an airplane armed with a bomb. You'll be perfectly safe then as statistics show that the chance of two mad bombers meeting in a plane is no more than one in a billion.

But women tend to excel in this kind of logic. For once, standing behind a couple in bank, I heard the woman say to the clerk: We would like to open a joint account please. In my name!

Or that young woman who said she doesn't want to get married to a young fool who thinks life is a bowl of cherries. She wants someone who has experienced the full tragedy of life. Ah, says her friend. You mean you want to marry a widower or a divorced man.

And, finally, there's the child who was asked at school: "What will you want to do when you're mummy's age?" To which she replied, "start dieting, of course..."

Yugoslavia to close down nine missions

BELGRADE, Jan. 4 (R) Yugoslavia is closing nine diplomatic missions abroad and reducing staff at seven others from the beginning of this year as part of government austerity measures, the Foreign Ministry has said. The cuts are aimed at saving $2.36 million, it added.

The government is closing temporarily Yugoslav embassies in South Yemen, Madagascar, Senegal, Singapore, Cameroon, Ivory Coast and Costa Rica, as well as its consulate general in Geneva and an information center in Cologne, West Germany, the ministry said.

Staff will be reduced at seven other embassies and consulates and Yugoslavia will also scale down the size of its missions in a number of international organizations, such as the United Nations Cultural Organization (UNESCO), the ministry said.

to education." Al-Sheikh said that, like other universities of the Kingdom, the IMISIU strives to produce a generation of preachers, thinkers and scholars. He added that the divine faith is in need of those who could defeat the enemies, but this could be achieved only with the preparation of men who have benefited from the springhead of the faith of worthy ancestors. He said that, what the leaders of the country are trying to achieve, is the pledge taken by the two great Imams Muhammad ibn Saud and Muhammad ibn Abdul Wahhab to work for the religion of God.

Al-Sheikh was followed by Dr. Al-Turki who said that the university welcomes the pioneer of the educational renaissance and a leader who dedicated most of his labor to reinforce the pillars of education in the country. In the person of the crown prince, the university today welcomes a man who has revived the traditions of the ancestors in assessing the value of education.

Turki said that the university concerns itself with an education that emphasizes human beings' freedom, righteousness, straightforwardness and worship of the Creator. He reaffirmed that the university could not have been able to carry out its message without the limitless support from the government.

Reviewing the establishment of the university, Turki said the Faculty of Shari'ah was the first to have been set up 30 years ago. It was later followed by other faculties, higher institutes and research centers.

Turki said the university this year has 7,082 students at the university stage and 19,307 students at other academic institutes.
